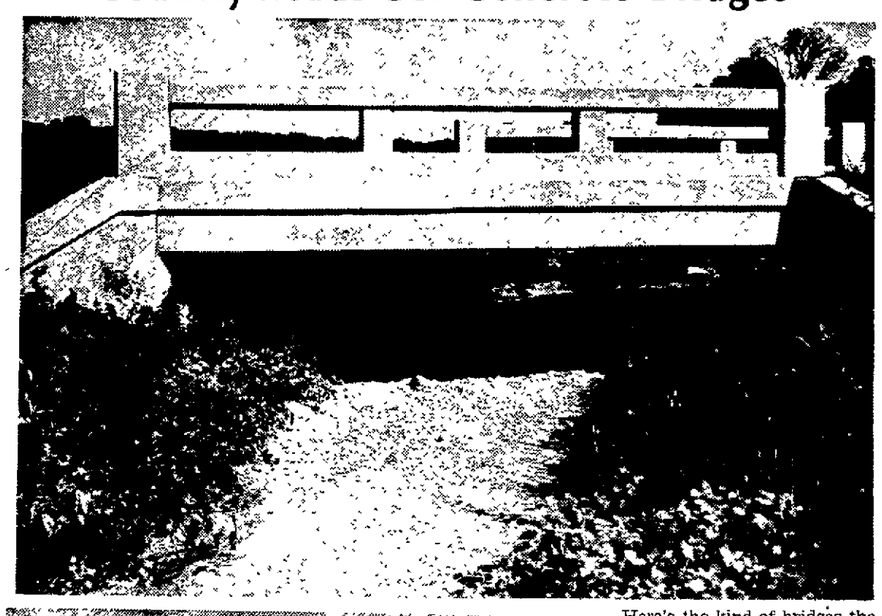
Congress Gets FDR Neutrality Message

Country Roads Get Concrete Bridges



Here's the kind of bridges the county has been building on rural roads during the past five years, but the commissioners plan to construct a $6,000 wooden bridge on North Main street and State Route 13, one of the heaviest-traveled thoroughfares in the city. The new concrete bridge shown in the two pictures here is on the Possum Run road south of Mansfield. One farmer who lives along the road said it has "about 50 cars a day" over it. Although heavy rainfall this week washed away part of the foundation of a wooden bridge now in use on North Main street, weakening the structure, commissioners said today they will go ahead with construction of another wooden bridge on the busy street.

Commissioners Go Ahead With Plans for Wooden N. Main Span

Despite the fact that the heavy rainfall last Monday night undermined the earth foundation of the present temporary wooden bridge over Touby's Run on heavily-traveled North Main street, Richland county commissioners went ahead today with plans to build another wooden bridge over the stream at a cost of about $6,000.

Meanwhile, figures compiled from County Engineer Howard Sword's records showed today that the county has spent more than $100,000 in the past five years to build new cement bridges on little-traveled rural roads. The actual cost of the bridges was much greater than that, but the federal government helped finance them with WPA money.

The county engineering department today completed plans for the $6,000 wooden structure on the busy State Route 13 north out of the city, and C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said construction probably would start by the first of next month.

Mitchell said materials for the bridge have already been ordered from a Columbus firm which promised to have them here within 30 days. Mitchell estimated that the bridge would be completed in about six weeks, which would be the middle of Decem-

Lake Freighters Resume Passage Through Canal

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich.—(AP) — The Great Lakes' biggest freighters, with passage to blocked-off locks partially restored, steamed on today with iron ore for the steel-makers after two restless days of lying idle.

Toward midnight workmen had cleared aside much of the obstruction to the main locks of the St. Marys Falls canal, and early today the first freighter nosed through the channel eastward—46½ hours delayed.

Opening the way to one of the two main locks, stout tugs and a boom derrick pulled a submerged train locomotive off one arm of a buckled bridge span and made it possible to free the other arm and let the boats through.

The locomotive, carrying two train men to death, plunged into the canal when one 165-foot arm of the large Bascule bridge collapsed early Tuesday.

GUS KAHN DIES

Heart Ailment Fatal to Composer Of 'My Blue' Heaven.'

HOLLYWOOD —(INS)— Funeral services were being arranged today for Gus Kahn, 54, noted song composer who died from a heart ailment. Kahn composed such notable hits as "My Buddy," "My Blue Heaven," "How're You Gonna Keep Them Down on the Farm," and scores of others.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Grace Kahn, a daughter, Irene, and a son, Donald. Kahn was born in Germany.

'PAID BIOFF'

Schenk Testifies He Gave $50,000 To Labor Leader.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., today testified on the witness stand in federal court that he had paid $50,000 in cash to William "Willie" Bioff, west coast labor leader, in 1936.

Schenck, first government witness in the extortion trial of Bioff and George E. Browne, president of the Theatrical and Motion Picture Employes' union said:

"In April of 1936, Bioff told me that he was the boss of the union and that he had Browne elected president so that he could get two million dollars out of the motion picture industry. I told him he was crazy. He finally came down to one million and then to $50,000. Later I paid him $50,000 in cash."

TRIAL RECESSED

COLUMBUS —(INS)— With opening statements completed, the trial of 37 men indicted on charges of mail fraud in connection with the sale of cemetery lots at Columbus, Marion and Springfield was recessed until tomorrow because of the absence of one juror, who was excused until then because of the death of a relative.

VOTE DRIVES TO OPEN NEXT WEEK

Democratic, Republican, Fire Levy Campaigners Get Set For Opening Rallies.

Mansfield's political leaders and campaigners in behalf of the proposed half-mill levy for fire-fighting equipment will start bidding for voters' attention next week in an attempt to break the lethargy that has surrounded the municipal campaign.

First to get under way will be the drive to put the half-mill levy over at the Nov. 4 election. Leroy B. Hamilton, chairman of the levy campaign committee, said his organization plans to launch its campaign next week through schools and civic and service clubs.

By the end of the week, the

DON'T KNOW HOW NAZIS GOT NOTE

White House Officials Say Letter May Have Been Released by Reds.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The White House still was without information today on the circumstances surrounding the manner in which the text of a letter from President Roosevelt to Soviet Premier Josef Stalin fell into German hands.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early advanced the possibility however, that it might have been released in routine fashion in Moscow.

"There is no reason why it should not have been if the Soviet authorities so elected," Early said. He added, however, that he was without information on this score.

SHIP ARMING LEGISLATION ALSO UP TODAY

Final Action on Amendment Scheduled For Next Thursday or Friday.

FILIBUSTER RECALLED

Isolationists Organize To Oppose Change; Leaders Sure of Passage.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt sends to congress today a message requesting amendment of the neutrality act to be followed by introduction of legislation to permit the arming of American merchant vessels against Axis raiders.

Final house action on that amendment is scheduled for one week from today or tomorrow. The amending legislation later may be expanded to enable our armed ships to enter belligerent ports including those of Great Britain in all out reinforcement of the empire life line.

Similar legislation was filibustered to futility on March 4, 1917, when the late Robert M. La Follette prevented senate action, although 75 of the 96 members signed a round robin statement that they would vote to arm our ships then if given the opportunity. The house already had passed the bill by a vote of 403 to 13.

Sen. Robert M. La Follette, jr., (Prog., Wis.) who succeeded to his father's seat, still is in the senate. Of those who filibustered with the elder La Follette more than 24 years ago, only Sen. George W. Norris (Ind., Neb.) remains. President Wilson called them:

"A little group of willful men."

Minority isolationists have organized to oppose today's neutrality act amendment which they characterize variously as a war measure and a declaration of war. But congressional leaders have assured Mr. Roosevelt that they have the votes to put guns on the ships. There may

Rev. E. G. Corwin will officiate at services tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at the Geiger funeral home. Burial will be in Mansfield Memorial park.

Mr. Fox, who was born in Adario on Feb. 13, 1888, was adjusting a painter's swing at the top of the building on which work was being completed, when he met his death. Losing his balance, he fell to the pavement suffering a fractured skull, broken neck and broken back.

Pfahler, Kilbourne; three brothers, Arthur T., of Akron, Frank A., of Mansfield and William L. Fox, Shelby; and two sisters, Mrs. Nettie McKeen, Oakpark, Ill., and Mrs. Fleeta Swisher, Mansfield.

'Two-Bride' Marriage Ends

After posing as a man for the past 15 years, Frances Orlando, 31, (left), confessed to police at Los Angeles that she married an 18-year-old girl, Elizabeth Nunz (right), last Labor day after eloping to Minden, Nev. Police, acting on a tip from the young girl's parents, arrested the "husband" at a Hollywood film studio where "he" was employed as a carpenter. Both are pictured sometime after their marriage which the Orlando girl described as "being a very happy one." Miss Nunz told police that she knew her "husband" was not a man, but their marriage provided her with an opportunity "to get away from home."

POLICE TIGHTEN UP ON DRIVING

Traffic Commissioner Says Squad To Start Cracking Down on Violators.

Mansfield motorists had better brush up on their parking and driving p's and q's because the citys' new traffic squad has started to tighten up on parking and traffic violations.

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said today that his squad had been steadily increasing the number of tickets issued for parking violations and that a closer check on driving would be made after the squad's motorcycles were radio-equipped.

Boals announced that the squad had spent its first two months in getting accustomed to their duties and in warning the public of habitual traffic infractions.

The public should be familiar with the traffic laws and the activities of the squad by now, however, Boals said, and should expect to be penalized if they continue to drive or park contrary to the law.

The traffic commissioner also

ENTERS PLEA IN SHOOTING CASE

Sanduskian Pleads Not Guilty In Death of War Veteran.

SANDUSKY—(INS)—Paul Patriarca, 22, of Sandusky, was held without bond today following his plea of not guilty to a first degree murder charge in the shooting of John W. Shea, 48-year-old war veteran, as he walked with three companions near the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors home last Friday.

Police ballistics experts said the bullet removed from Shea's body was fired from a gun held by Patriarca as he leaned from a passing automobile and fired at random.

Shea's death ended a shooting spree engaged in by Patriarca and a 15-year-old Toledo boy as they sped through Sandusky streets, according to police.

UNDER PRIORITY

Iron and Steel Scrap Clamped Under Federal Control.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Donald M. Nelson, director of priorities of the OPM, today placed iron and steel scrap under full priority control.

The OPM said the action was taken to avert a situation which it said threatened to shut down or curtail the operation of steel mills, working at full capacity on defense orders, and relieve serious day to day shortages.

Under terms of the order Nelson is authorized to issue specific instructions for deliveries of scrap, even designating the source, destination, or amount to be delivered to or acquired by any person.

Claim Million Soviet Troops Are Encircled

Eastern Front War Virtually Decided, Hitler Aide Declares; Russians Admit Withdrawel From Key City But Fail to Hint Collapse.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's press chief declared today that "the Soviet Union is militarily finished" and that the 110-day-old war on the eastern front was virtually decided, with nearly 1,000,000 Red army troops caught in two vast encirclements in the German drive on Moscow.

The sensational pronouncement, which was not elaborated by any details of specific land gains, came from Dr. Otto Dietrich arriving in Berlin direct from the fuehrer's eastern front headquarters.

"From the springs of the Volga to the Sea of Azov," he asserted, "remnants of Soviet armies everywhere are in retreat."

The Berlin radio broadcast a Shanghai dispatch quoting "Soviet quarters" as reporting that the Russian government was fleeing Moscow. There was no confirmation elsewhere.

Keyed with Nazi claims of triumph, the Germans published a special order of the day issued by Hitler a week ago at the start of the new offensive, declaring:

Today, (Thursday, Oct. 2) begins the last great, decisive battle of this year. It will hit the enemy destructively and with it the instigator of the entire war, England herself.

"For if we crush this opponent, we also remove the last English ally on the continent."

A special high command bulletin, heralded by a fanfare of trumpets over the German radio, declared Russia's battered Red armies had not a single division left fully fit for battle on the entire front.

"Attacked from the rear by strong armored forces, three enemy armies must expect their annihilation also in the area of Bryansk," the Nazi high command said.

"Together with units already encircled at Vyazma, Marshal Timoshenko has here sacrificed the last fully able armies of the total Soviet front."

Bryansk is 220 miles southwest of Moscow, Vyazma 125 miles west of the U. S. S. R. capital. They are about 130 miles apart.

Dr. Dietrich said between 60 and 70 Russian divisions—900,000 to $1,050,000 troops—were hopelessly bottled up in the Bryansk and Vyazma sectors, facing imminent annihilation.

Once their destruction has been completed, he asserted, "the cam-

BRITISH WORRY OVER NEW DRIVE

See No Hope of Easing Heavy Pressure on Moscow With Reopened West Front.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Germany's mighty new drive toward the heart of Russia—imperiling the armies that guard Moscow—was viewed today with mounting concern by the British, who saw no real hope of easing the pressure on their Soviet allies by reopening a western land front.

With supply as the chief means of aid, British and United States' missions to Moscow returned to England loaded with data on Russia's needs and pledged to deliver the goods.

Newspaper military commentators took the view that the next few weeks would decide the fate of Russia's main armies, now locked in one of the mightiest battles of history.

British sources heard that the Germans were hurling every land and air weapon in their military arsenal against the Red army stand on the central front.

The battle before Moscow raged with some of the fiercest fighting of this or any other war.

There is every reason to believe the Russian morale has been stiffened by Adolf Hitler's fresh assault, these London sources said.

Powerful frontal attacks by German forces created pockets of possibly encircled or semi-encircled Russian troops, the authoritative sources related.

The most dangerous German thrusts were said to be those from the region of Vyazma, 125 miles west of Moscow, and in the Woman Waits as Doctors Debate Over Whether She Ate Poison 'Mushrooms'

She Feels Fine, Except for Slight Numbness In Her Feet.

(By United Press)

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mrs. Neoma Robertson, 39, waited in confusion today while doctors and botanists debated whether or not the "mushrooms" she ate last Sunday really were deadly toadstools.

She felt fine except for a little numbness in her feet—which doctors said easily could be nervous reaction—and she was unfrightened, but physicians insisted she remain in the hospital under observation.

They admited, however, that they had never treated such a case before, and that if Mrs. Robertson did show symptoms, they were uncertain what could be done to save her.

If the "mushrooms" were, the type toadstools some experts believe they were, Mrs. Robertson should show symptoms by next Monday of a slow lethal process in which the plant's poisons destroy the body's red corpuscles until death occurs.

Mrs. Robertson, wife of a bottling company executive, picked the mushrooms near her suburban home last Saturday and Sunday she served them for dinner. Robertson, who said he "hates mushrooms," did not partake, but Mrs. Robertson made her meal of them.

She had some uncooked mushrooms left over and Monday gave them to a neighbor girl to take to high school.

"I thought they might make an interesting subject for experiment in botany," Mrs. Robertson said.

But Monday afternoon the girl returned.

"Mrs. Robertson, my instructor said that if you ate those mushrooms you should be dead by now," she reported.

Halts Use of Vital Building Materials for Non-Defense

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The supply priorities and allocations board issued a sweeping policy decree today forbidding the start of any public or private construction which would use critical materials essential to the nation's defense or to the public health and safety.

The ruling applied, the SPAB announcement said, to power, navigation, and flood control projects, office buildings, post offices, hotels, highways, and even residential construction. Its effect was to suspend such non-essential building for the duration of the emergency, SPAB officials said.

The ruling carried the implication that the priorities division headed by Donald M. Nelson, by using its priority power to deny materials to projects it considers unessential, could block public works projects approved by congress.

In such a case, it would permit exercise of a virtual veto power to halt action on one project approved by congress while permitting another project contained in the same legislation to go ahead.

The SPAB announcement said the new policy means that two tests will be applied hereafter to every building project:

1—Does this construction in-

MOTORING TIPS ASSURE SAVING ON TIRES, FUEL

Advice of Experts Shows Way To National Defense Contribution.

DETROIT —(CP)— The American motorist, confronted with government rationing of rubber and possible "gasolineless" Sundays can do something for defense and also for his pocketbook by intelligent use of tires and fuel.

Here are some economy tips, offered by D. C. Bathrick, Pontiac official, which you may want to slip into the glove compartment of your automobile:

1—You'll save money by buying gasoline at night or early in the morning. If you don't know it sun expands gasoline. Early buying, according to engineers can save you five gallons in 100.

2—Tires will last 25 per cent longer if the spare is used along with the others. Every 4,000 miles change the position of all tires; use each in its turn as the spare. By doing this you are distributing mileage over five tires instead of four. Thus, when you've driven 20,000 miles, each tire will have had only 16,000 miles of actual wear.

3—Maintain proper air pressure in tires. A tire one-third under-inflated will wear out twice as fast. High speeds are tough on tires. So are sudden stops, sharp, fast turns and curb scraping.

4—Press the accelerator pedal gently. A "heavy" foot pumps more gasoline in the cylinders than can be used effectively.

5—Shift into high gear at about 25 miles an hour. Roaring into second gear is a good way to reduce the gasoline supply—and swiftly.

6—Coast to gradual stops. Turn the motor off when you're parked in front of the house waiting for your wife.

7—Keep your car well lubricated.

8—Watch the spark plugs. A dirty plug can waste as much as a tenth of a tankful of gasoline.

9—Remember: a knocking engine is a "gas-hog."

10—It is generally false economy to put an old tube in a new casing.

Chevrolet's chief engineer, J. M. Crawford, agrees generally with those driving tips. He said highway operating efficiency and economy depend largely upon the individual driver. A motorist should drive at a steady pace on the highway after finding his car's most economical "cruising" speed according to Crawford. "Spurting" or driving intermittently at high and lower speeds consumes fuel more rapidly, he said.

Frequent checkup on a car's cooling system will prove a money-saver, Crawford asserted. A motor that is overheated or running too cool uses extra gasoline.

KEEP CALM IF YOU WANT TO USE JIU-JITSU

New York Window Cleaner Tells How to Beat Bully With Simple Flick of Wrist.

(By Special News Service)

NEW YORK—A good many of the 20,000 office workers in Rockefeller Center know Al Cromaner by sight as a squarely built, good-natured window cleaner, but only a few know that he is a jiu-jitsu expert who could break their arms, necks or backs without ruffling his hair.

Those who do know aren't in the least perturbed, for Al is always assuring people interested in jiu-jitsu that the more you know of the Japanese science of muscleculture, the less likely you are to employ it roughly on the layman.

On the other hand, like other practitioners, Al is inclined to stress in terms of broken bones what might happen if a trick meets strong resistance.

Despite the fact that his attitude is purely dispassionate, the listener is inclined to come away a little bruised in spirit and a good deal respectful of the Japanese.

Jiu-jitsu, Al likes to remark, teaches remarkable self-control.

"The strategy is calmness," he says. "An angry man is off guard and at a disadvantage. Now let's say you are going into a subway train and a big bully rushes past you and nearly knocks you down. If you turn around and bawl him out and get tough he's likely to give you a thumping before you get set.

"Now here's what you do—what the Japanese would do. You go up to the man and apologize. Something simple like: 'Very sorry.' That takes him off guard. He relaxes. The moment he does you grab him like this and before he knows it he's on the floor. (Al demonstrates this part of it.) If he's still tough when he's on his back, you give him your knee, like this, in the jaw.

"The best part of it is that he has to go down when you get his hand. If he doesn't, you just break his hand or his arm. What can he do then?"

Al concedes this would be a drastic procedure. Personally, he says, he probably would let the man alone.

OLD PRISON

NASSAU, Bahamas—(UP)—The Public Library, an odd octagonal building not far from Rawson's Square, originaly was the Nassau Prison.

The old building, set in the midst of a park bright with bougainvillea and hibiscus and shaded by royal palms, was built in 1797, during the reign of George III, and served as a jail until 1847, in Queen Victoria's reign, when it was made a public library and museum.

On Estate Where Unburied Bodies Were Found

This now sadly dilapidated structure once housed the exclusive Pinehurst seminary, operated near Jacksonville, Fla., 50 years ago by Miss Gertrude Anhorn, now 74, and Miss Minnie Anhorn, now 68, whom a reporter discovered had kept unburied bodies of their father, a sister, Fannie, and a Negro servant because they could not bear to see them interred. The father, Elbert Anhorn, died in 1921, Fannie in 1925, and the servant in 1923.

LADIES, TO BECOME SUCCESS IN BUSINESS DON'T BE 'WHEEDLER'

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Ladies—are you a success in business? Do male executives heap praises on your permanently waved head? Or do they melt into an elevator when they see you coming?

Maybe you are an "aper." Or perhaps a "blitzkreiger"

As Clarence Francis, president of the General Foods corporation, explained it to a convention of 1,000 female business and sales executives, there are certain types of workers who will never set the world afire.

He ticked them off as "wheedlers," "weepers," apers," "barkers," and "blitzkreigers"

The "wheedlers," he identified as the type which is always hunting around for something. The "apers" are the persons who are best in character as somebody else—they are the Garbos but never are themselves. The "barkers" snap at everyone from office boy to president. The "weepers" always ar upset about something and the "blitzkreiger" always is trying to push something through at the time and in the manner he or she wants it done and regardless of any other factors.

Aside from that Francis expressed belief that "women belong in business. Women have their rights in the professions and women are going places."

He addressed a meeting sponsored by the New York League of Business and Professional Women and the Sales Executives club of New York, held in connection with National Business Women's week.

OLD COINS IN TREASURE

SANTA CRUZ, Cal. — (UP) — Capt. Jack Rhein of the fire department realized the dream that nearly every human being at some time has—that of digging up buried treasure. His spade turned up at his Glen Canyon property a metallic box containing a collection of old English coins, some of them dating back 200 years.

Go to Mull's Drug Store or your druggist today and get a small bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil—most every good druggist has this. Use as directed for 10 days, and if then you say it has failed to give you full satisfaction—money back.

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 10 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Jordan, a car salesman, could think of no answer so he climbed out and the one-eyed man drove away.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1941.

A dollar may not go as far these days—but it certainly goes faster.

The idea seems to be that it is much too early to start thinking about the election, which is still a little more than three weeks ahead.

A correspondent, just back from Europe, writes: "The problem of defeating Hitler narrows down to the technical military problem of bringing a stronger military power to bear against him"—which seems to clarify the situation immensely.

'Chest Clinic' for H. S. Juniors

FURTHER progress of efforts to reduce the ravages of tuberculosis in Mansfield and Richland county is noted in the steps now being taken by the Richland County Tuberculosis association to make what is known as a "chest survey" of students in the junior class of Senior high school—as the start-off of a plan under which similar examinations will be made available to all children in that age bracket.

According to announcement just made, the gift of $3,000 by a Mansfield man whose name is withheld, has made possible the purchase of portable X-ray equipment suitable for making examinations wherever most convenient—which, in this instance, will be in the high school buildings in Mansfield and elsewhere in the county, according to present plans.

It is pointed out by officials of the county tuberculosis association that the age range from 15 to 25 years marks greatest susceptibility to the disease and that an X-ray examination will disclose whether there is a condition which requires treatment to avoid future trouble.

Consent of parents is required and it is explained that the examination "is one that any person should be glad to have."

Considering the frequency with which unsuspected tuberculosis is permitted to pass the incipient stage before it is discovered, the present effort to inaugurate a five-year program designed to guard the youth of this city and county against this dread disease merits full public co-operation, more especially among the parents of students to whom the opportunity for examination is now offered.

By carrying this work through a five-year period it is expected to have an excellent survey of a large percentage of the youth of Richland county between the ages of 16 and 21.

Honor Columbus and Pulaski

ON TWO DATES this month Americans who are conscious of their national history will pause to honor two "aliens" who contributed much to it. Columbus day, Oct. 12, commemorates the day in 1492 when the Italian navigator who was looking for the Indies sighted a small speck of land in the Western Hemisphere—unknown to Europe before that time. His discovery did more than stimulate exploration and commerce. It opened a New World where vigorous lovers of freedom were able to develop, practice and defend their ideas of human liberty and justice. Those ideas flourished here and are today the hope and inspiration of the Old World.

Casimir Pulaski is the other man to be honored this month. October 11 is the anniversary of his death from wounds received in the battle of Savannah. The young Polish soldier, born in Podolia, was one of the real heroes of the American Revolutionary war. He had fought in vain for Polish freedom before he joined the American cause. But apparently he believed that the battle for freedom was world-wide and it would be advanced by the achievement of freedom everywhere.

At any rate, he came to America and fought so valiantly for American independence that congress made him commander of a brigade of cavalry and, later, authorized a monument in his honor. President Roosevelt has called for a national memorial day for Pulaski. This is an excellent time to recall his service to our country and to mankind.

Speaking of Propaganda

NO DOUBT about it—now that it has been seen—"Sergeant York" is a "propaganda" picture.

In fact it fairly reeks with propaganda.

At the very start-off it propagandizes strongly against excessive use of intoxicants.

Then it moves on to quite obvious religious propaganda, with conversion, "faith in the Lord," belief in Bible teachings, and things like that.

Touching on many things, it plays emotionally on "Mother love," sanctity of the home, virtuous young womanhood—all propaganda for decency and better living.

Then there are such subjects as patriotism, loyalty to country, duty to others—each strongly stressed and unmistakably interpreted as propaganda for the kind of Americanism that built this country, and that must be depended upon to maintain it.

It even goes so far as to propagandize against war profits—which may make it highly objectionable in some quarters at this particular time.

Yes, "Sergeant York" is a propaganda picture—the kind of "propaganda" that helps instead of harms America.

Placing Freedom First

HATS OFF to the people of Booger Hollow, Arkansas. Their town, fitted into a hollow in the Ozark mountains, is three miles long and 150 yards wide. Its population is composed of 38 families. The average yearly income is not more than $500.

For some time the people have wanted a community house. They have been working hard to get the money for it and have raised $75. They intended to build it this year, cutting and milling the necessary lumber themselves. Now they have decided to do something else.

Booger Hollow will use its precious $75 to buy defense bonds. Also, it will present a defense booth as its exhibit at the county fair this month. The booth will be manned by three young fellows from the U. S. army, who happen also to be citizens of Booger Hollow. The war department will co-operate by sending materials for display.

The townsfolk explain their action clearly and thereby reveal both their patriotism and their understanding of the world situation.

"What good is a community house," they ask, "without freedom?"

Once there was a man who advertised that in five lessons he would teach anyone to quack like a duck—and because nobody wanted to learn how to quack like a duck he decided that advertising didn't pay.

THAT PROMISED BEARSKIN COAT

Listen World!

Why's a Show-Off?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

Y'U SEE, my Mom 'n' Dad aren't my real folks a'tall. They jes say that to fool people. They don't guess I know the truth, but I do. A gypsy told me!"

The little girl paused. She was a skinny, colorless little girl with knobby elbows. Usually she hung around the other girls, chewing her nails, watching with listless eyes. But her eyes weren't listless today. They sparkled triumphantly. She'd made them notice her at last! Lookit how they listened, holding their breath, bugging their eyes!

"A gypsy told me," she continued. "A big tall gypsy with rings in his ears. He told me I'd been stole somewhere in Europe from awful rich people, maybe princes 'n' dukes—'n' my folks here bought me when I was only a teeny baby. . . ."

Ooooo-o-oh, Patty Jane—isn't it too wonderful!" they gasped in an envious chorus. "Jes suppose—maybe you'll be called back to your throne—'n' have a crown 'n' everything!"

They were crowding about her now, offering to carry her books, demanding details. Smiling complacently, Patty Jane accepted their admiration. Already she was considering what she'd tell them next.

Fantastic? Not at all — as many a distracted parent can testify. All normal youngsters tell tales in their early 'teens. Nor do they consider themselves liars. They are simply trying to grab their legitimate "place in the sun" . . . seeking a position of importance which has become as necessary to them as food. And there's a reason behind it, which hits us all where we live. And explains many a curious caper.

Patty Jane and Junior are far from feeling the assurance they exhibit. Inwardly, they're beset with fears . . . bewildered by the challenge of a constantly changing world . . . terrified lest people ignore or belittle them. A word of criticism or even friendly advice becomes a mortal insult. Restraint is an unforgivable humiliation. Where, oh where can they find the admiration they need to bolster their endless fears? The answer's easy. Peggy Jane invents her royal birth . . . and Junior tells The Gang how his folks beat and starve him. And we wonder "what on earth possesses those children."

Why wonder when we use the same tactics ourselves daily! Life's as bewildering at 40 as it was at 10 and we crave admiration and assurance just as keenly. Why's a Smartie? Why's a Boaster and a Showoff? That's why . . . because underneath, there's a frightened, lonely child who will never grow up . . . reaching frantically for a hand in the dark.

And, somehow, you can't condemn them quite as sternly when you know that fact. Chances are it even quickens your heart to a friendlier understanding. For when the curtains are drawn and you're all alone, sometimes you're frightened, too. Yes? I am.

Help Each Other.

Sometimes drunks are jovial and hilarious; sometimes they are depressed and morose. Whatever their state of mind, they would seem unlikely persons to enter wholeheartedly into a help-one-another movement, especially if it meant giving up alcohol completely.

Yet that is exactly what has happened within the growing ranks of Alcoholics Anonymous within the last five years. One "rummy" has helped another—and in so doing has helped himself—until literally hundreds of lives have been reclaimed from the ravages of liquor.

They were true alcoholics—to whom liquor once seemed more essential than food or air. Many of them knew and regretted their weakness, but it possessed them like a disease.

They have found a new life, based on the premise that they have a responsibility to help others in the same plight.

In five years, the organization has become nation-wide in scope. Its success is a testimonial to the innate desire of all men and women to help one another.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Booster for Scrapple.

Editor News-Journal:

One thing this country could use more of, is scrapple. Here and there are folks who will not savvy about scrapple, so I will show off and tell them.

I am thinking about scrapple on account of the mornings getting cooler. On cool mornings you can eat more. When everybody learns about scrapple for breakfast you will hear more alarm clocks going off earlier. And if you get up early, you gotta go to bed the night before, before 3 a. m. And if the nation gets to going to bed before 3 a. m., it will have a steadier head next day, and we can maybe get our country halfway back to normal versus the new school, hoot-owl, planned system we been putting up with. So it is easy to see what more scrapple could do for the nation.

Philadelphia scrapple or "panhaas," which some people call it, and the kind my Susie makes, is boiled yellow cornmeal, salt and liver sausage. Fried next morning, in slices, for breakfast, brother, I warn you now, you will want to rush right out and buy the Mrs. a new hat or something—which is not a bad hint either, for the Mrs. to work on.

Blast Against NYA Resulted From Row In General Accounting Office

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—An armored tank carried under an airplane as an eagle carries its prey left the realm of fancy and became stark reality when the Germans produced this fearful novelty in the invasion of Crete. Now it is about to become a reality in the United States.

In Brooklyn, New York, a mechanism is being built for the "hook-on" and "release" whereby a tank is attached under the fuselage of the plane, and released as the plane lands.

The tank's crew of three rides in the tank as it is borne aloft, and when the plane lands, the tank driver operates the release mechanism. Free of the plane, the tank (light type of 10½ tons) operates independently, with a cruising radius of 300 miles.

This mechanism is being developed by the Armored Tank corporation of New York. It is designed to be attached to a certain type of large transport plane already in production.

NYA Fight.

REAL inside behind that General Accounting Office blast against the National Youth administration was an internal row between the investigating and accounting divisions of the GAO.

The gum-shoers are under fire as inefficient and high-handed, so to make a splash and divert criticism from themselves they heaved a load of brickbats at NYA, charging it with balking army recruiting. The real facts are that NYA Administrator Aubrey Williams was bitterly assailed by the leftist National Youth congress because he cooperated with the army and navy to encourage NYA students to enlist in the armed forces.

Another inside detail of the hostile report was that it was issued without having been read by Comptroller General Lindsay Warren, who is an old friend of Williams and a strong NYA supporter when he was a congressman from North Carolina.

Note:—Insiders predict an early consolidation of NYA and CCC under a single head. Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt, titular boss of the two agencies, favors this move.

China Wants Bombers.

NOT many people know it, but the Chinese government is having such a tough time getting war materials from the U. S. A., that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has retained the famous ex-brain truster Tom Corcoran to do a little lobbying with the White House.

What Chiang Kai-shek especially wants is long range bombers. His idea is that China cannot remain on the defensive indefinitely, and he proposes sending flying fortresses over Tokyo and Osaka, whose paper and bamboo houses would go up in smoke if subjected to bombing raids.

Chiang Kai-shek claims that this type of offensive would make the Japanese think twice regarding their revived plans to drive into Thailand toward Singapore.

However, there is only one place where China can get the bombers, and so far not even Tom Corcoran, who once sat at the right hand of the president, has been able to pry them loose. The man who has blocked the bombers happens to be Harry Hopkins, one-time partner and mentor of Corcoran.

Hopkins argues that big bombers should go to Britain and Russia first. This has focused attention upon a wide rift among Roosevelt advisers over help to China or appeasing Japan.

So far Roosevelt has followed a middle course by continuing a certain amount of aid to China but still flirting with Japan—even though Japan recently reaffirmed her partnership in the Axis.

Note:—Exactly thirty years ago today, Sun Yat-sen, father of the Chinese Republic, was in Colorado with a price of $300,000 on his head, offered by the Manchu Emperor when Sun's followers overthrew the Manchus and established the present republic.

Lindbergh's Home.

IF YOU will turn to page 1598 of the current (1940-41) issue of Who's Who, you will find a very illuminating commentary on Charles A. Lindbergh.

As a leading champion of isolationism, the principal tenet of the ex-air hero is love of the U. S. A. America First is the symbol and dogma of his political credo. In his recent Fort Wayne, Ind., speech he declared, "I have no motive in mind other than the welfare of my country and my civilization." But on page 1596 of "Who's Who" Lindbergh's self-penned biography tells a different story.

This is what he says: "Home, Illiece Island, Penvenan, France!

Illiece Island is in Nazi-occupied France. Nearby is an island belonging to Dr. Alexis Carrel, with whom Lindbergh collaborated in making their so-called mechanical heart. Carrel is now in occupied France and is working in cooperation with the Petain government which is playing hand-in-glove with the Nazis.

Lindbergh has not been abroad since he returned in 1939. Why he still gives the little island in Nazi-controlled France as his "home" even at this late date is not explained in the biography, in which he carefully lists all his achievements and decorations—except the one presented him by Hitler.

Note:—Several days prior to Lindbergh's Fort Wayne speech, Berlin shortwave broadcasts to the U. S. were devoted almost entirely to attacks on Roosevelt as a dictator, and charges that free speech and free press were disappearing in this country. Theme of Lindbergh's speech was that the president was assuming dictatorial powers and was secretly planning to call off the 1942 elections.

Leon Henderson's Pants.

A CHICAGO suspender firm sent Leon Henderson, price administrator, a letter and a package. The letter said they had seen a picture of him which revealed that he was in danger of losing his trousers. This, they felt, would be a national disaster.

The package contained a pair of suspenders.

Shortly afterwards, Henderson took occasion to wear the suspenders at a ceremony in his home town, Millville, New Jersey, where he dedicated a new airport. He sent a picture of himself, wearing suspenders, to the Chicago firm, and thanked them for saving his pants.

The big, patriotic Danish-born former auto mogul has taken it by working harder and more zealously than ever before. When particularly tough problems come before SPAB, of which he is a member, Knudsen invariably volunteers to handle them. "I've got broad shoulders," he grins. "I can take a lot of squawking." . . . Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Some time ago I became interested in ascertaining the whereabouts of an actress who had made quite a name for herself during the Twenties but who had dropped out of sight in recent seasons. After calling Equity and various agents without getting anywhere I got in touch with Ward Morehouse of the New York Sun, a sort of drawling encyclopedia of the theater who knows the theater and everybody in it.

"Yes," said Ward, "she's dead. She died in Hollywood about two years ago. That's the trouble with trying to find people who have disappeared from Broadway. They're either in Hollywood or they're dead or married and living private domestic lives."

I thought of this the other day when the Music Box theater, that bright little playhouse on West 45th street, "the street of hits," was celebrating its twenty-first birthday.

The Music Box doesn't look at all like an old theater and the reason perhaps is that so many successes of the theater have kept the name so continually in the theatrical page news and in the minds of drama-goers.

But it did seem old, suddenly, when one scanned a playbill of the first Music Box Revue, which Irving Berlin and the late Sam Harris and one of the Shuberts put on there, September 22, 1920. One saw names of persons who were wildly applauded in that day but who are prominent no more. You also saw a name that startled you because it is the name of a young actress who is in Hollywood today and who is well known everywhere and is highly thought of on both sides of this theatrically-minded country. Her name is Miriam Hopkins.

Scaning the list further you find these names: Florence Moore, Willie Collier, Sam Bernard, Wilda Bennett, Margaret Irving, Helen Claire, Ivy Sawyer and Joe Santley.

WELL, let's see. Ivy Sawyer is married to Joe Santley, who is a motion picture director and they are on the West Coast. Helen Claire is not the southern Helen Claire of two years ago who starred in "Kiss the Boys Goodbye." Margaret Irving, the last time I saw her, was still with the Shuberts, in "The Streets of Paris." But Florence Moore is dead, and so is Sam Bernard. Willie Collier is on the coast. I do not know where Wilda Bennet is. I do not know where Helen Claire is.

After the Music Box gave up its policy of musical revues it became the home of celebrated comedies and dramas by such authors as George S. Kaufman, Noel Coward, W. Somerset Maugham, Edna Ferber, John Colton and Morrie Ryskind. It will have for its tenant this season a new comedy by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman. But next year Irving Berlin is going to revive some of the old Music Box revues that were so appreciated in the early Twenties. This should be an interesting venture, but of course he will have to have new stars, new names, and maybe in some instances even new songs.

THE 30,000 men in the swamps and jungles of Panama have awarded their favorite actress a commission. She's Gertrude Lawrence of "Lady in the Dark," and Miss Lawrence entertained her chums in Panama by radio recently. Miss Lawrence's commission is that of "First Class Mudder."

Fringed Gentians

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

FOR ALMOST two years I have searched the fields and fence-rows but did not find the lovely autumn flowers of the gentian family. I came to believe that they did not grow in our locality.

An old man told me who had lived here many years ago, that there used to be a pretty blue flower that grew on a slender stem and had frills around the top. He pointed far out across the valley and declared, "I saw hundreds of 'em bloomin' in that little nook, beyond Honey creek—but that was 30 years ago!"

I thanked him and next day I walked through a slow drizzling rain to the very spot he had pointed out, but did not find a single flower.

One afternoon I drove along a country road eight or ten miles to the south and stopped beside a culvert where the ditch was thickly overgrown with bluegrass. Bright yellow goldenrod seemed as new as if it had opened just that morning; small white and purple asters grew between; scarlet dewberry leaves gleamed like little flames beneath. I crossed the fence, which had a defiant threatening barb wire on the top, to look more closely. Dry leaves crunched beneath my feet, but when I stood still a peace and quiet reigned that is only found in these hazy autumn days.

I felt the coolness of the little brook that had almost ceased to flow, but mirrored in its bosom the bloom that grew on its banks. Then, like pleasure found when one forgets he is seeking it, or rare thoughts that touch our consciousness but casually, my lifted eyes beheld a colony of fringed gentians on the gentle rise above me. Only a single colony, I thought at first, but as I looked about, I counted at least ten clumps raising their bluish purple heads above the grass.

Sometimes two or three stems grew from a single crotch. Occasionally a single flower would bloom on a solitary stalk, more square than round. The tough leaves were pointed, and grew opposite each other, like boneset. I knew I had never been honored by such company before. Those rich modest colored petals looked through their dainty fringes to the sky—"Blue, blue as if that sky let fall a flower from its cerulean wall."

Reluctantly, at last, I reclimbed the defiant topmost strand of fence, marked with my eyes the precious spot, the brook, the gentle slope, the farmer's pasture. I left every gentian blooming where I found it—the quiet nook as I looked at it from a more distant view, was etched against the hill. I thought I heard a gentle voice come from the tangled maze of color, "Hast thou loved the fringed gentian and left it on its stem?"

And I answered low, "I did—but I carried its loveliness away, in my heart."

RURAL WOMEN MEET FRIDAY

Richland County Housewives To Hear Outline of Home Extension Program.

The home extension program for Richland county rural women for the 1941-42 season will be launched Friday afternoon at a leader's training meeting in the county agent's office at the courthouse, Miss Elizabeth Bay, county home demonstration agent, said today.

Miss Thelma Beall, home management specialist at Ohio State university, will be here to assist Miss Bay in outlining the home extension program for women leaders from 14 rural communities in the county. The meeting will open at 1 p. m.

Miss Bay said two meetings will be held this winter in each of the 14 communities to enable rural women to obtain up-to-date information that will help them in their household duties. Topic of the first series of meetings will be "Household Economies." The second series will deal with soap-making and the use of commercial soaps.

The meetings will be held in Grange halls and community centers wherever possible and in homes in some cases, Miss Bay said. They will be open to all women. Pot-luck dinners will be served in connection with some of the sessions, while others will be only afternoon meetings.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Hundreds of requests made to the governor's office for information about legal holidays and when they are to be observed on Monday instead of Sunday today brought a ruling from Don Power, the governor's secretary.

Jan. 1, or New Year's day; Feb. 12, Lincoln's birthday; Feb. 22, Washington's birthday; May 30, Memorial day; July 4, Independence day; first Monday in September, Labor day; Oct. 12, Columbus day; Nov. 11, Armistice day; any November day designated by the governor or president as Thanksgiving day, and Christmas day.

Monday will be the official holiday if any of the following fall on Sunday: Jan. 1, Feb. 22, May 30, July 4, Nov. 11, or Dec. 25.

Why Lincoln's birthday was omitted from the list Power did not explain.

MOSCOW DRIVE WON, CLAIM OF NAZI COMMAND

Reds Admit Withdrawal From Key City, Say Troops Still Battling.

paign will develop when and how we wish."

To Britain, he added this warning:

"Let the English attempt a landing in Norway, Holland, Belgium or on the French coast and they will learn what reserves we still have."

While the Germans thus proclaimed a climactic turning-point in the world's greatest military campaign, the Russians acknowledged they had withdrawn from Orel, key town 68 miles southeast of Bryansk, on the Moscow-Kharkov railroad, but gave no intimation of impending collapse.

A mid-day Red army bulletin said Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's forces on the central front were still battling fiercely against the Nazi juggernaut in the Bryansk and Vyazma sectors.

Tass, the official Russian news agency, indicated that Soviet troops still held Vyazma.

Russian warplanes, the news agency said, "concentrated heavy blows on enemy tank columns which managed to break through" in that sector and "struck telling blows at one such column proceeding toward Vyazma."

Russian civilians were now reported fighting shoulder-to-shoulder with Red army soldiers to stem the Nazi smash toward Moscow.

A German pilot said snow was falling behind the front lines, spreading a thin layer over the Russian steppes.

"The German command is throwing into the battle division after division," a Soviet bulletin said.

"Our units are putting up fierce resistance to the Fascist troops and are striking heavy blows at the enemy."

London military quarters described the battle as the fiercest of the war, but said that there was every reason to believe that Russian morale had been stiffened by Hitler's tempestuous new assault and that there was no confirmation of any encirclement actually having been carried out.

German reports said the armies of Field Marshal General Fedor von Bock had established a "solid German front" at Vyazma, on a main road 125 miles west of Moscow, after encircling several Russian armies in that sector.

Advanced scouts of Marshal von Bock were presumed to be pushing eastward, the Germans said.

Military authorities in Berlin said the German air force was attacking the Russians retreating to Rostov-on-Don in southern Russia and were taking a heavy toll of men and materiel.

The Germans have reported that the Soviet ninth army was trapped along the northern shores of the Sea of Azov.

British Report Sub Sunk by Trawler

LONDON — (AP) — A British trawler, the Lady Shirley, was credited today with shelling and sinking a German submarine in a spirited battle at sea with what the admiralty called a "larger and better equipped adversary."

The admiralty said the gunlayer of the Lady Shirley was killed by machine gun-fire from the U-boat, and his place was taken immediately by an officer.

"After having been hit by several four-inch shells, the U-boat crew held their hands above their heads and shouted that they surrendered," the admiralty announced.

The submarine sank almost immediately and the Lady Shirley rescued 44 survivors who were taken to Gibraltar as prisoners.

Budapest Says Reds Quit Along Dnieper

BUDAPEST —(INS)— A Hungarian military bulletin reported today that Soviet troops have "ceased activity" on the Dnieper river front after being encircled by Axis forces. The Russians, it was stated, now are trying to break out of the ring and escape to the south.

Japan Criticizes Actions of U. S.

TOKYO—(U.P.)—Japanese spokesmen and newspapers today criticized the "wilful, arrogant" actions of the United States and warned that the war "is likely to spread to other regions" of the world at any moment.

Entry of the United States into the war, a spokesman said, would "bring ruin" to civilization

Two 'Gifts' for the Germans

So large and heavy are these Russian shells, that special vehicles on tracks are needed to transport them from their bomb-proof store-room in Leningrad to the big guns waiting to send them shrieking into the German lines besieging that north Russian city. The men are sailors who are helping defend the beleagured city.

ber if work is started Nov. 1. He said the route would be kept open during construction.

Commissioners said one of their reasons for building a cheaper wooden bridge over Touby's Run was that they had been told the Mansfield Conservancy district may become operative in a year or two and change the course of the stream, making a bridge unnecessary. Members of the conservancy board, however, said the plans for a flood-control project will not alter the stream's course at the North Main bridge.

Commissioners also pointed out that to finance their half of the cost of a $40,000 bridge would mean a bond issue since the county does not have the money to build it. Richland county, however, has been out of debt since last year, one of the few Ohio counties without bonded indebtedness.p

Commissioners decided on the cheap wooden bridge after the state highway department asked them to share the cost of a cement structure to costs close to $40,000.

Alhough commissioners and County Engineer Howard Sword called the estimate "beyond reason," figures compiled by Sword show that three other bridges built on state highways in the county in the past nine years cost more than $40,000. The county contributed a total of $8,000 to the cost of the three.

A cement bridge constructed on U. S. route 42 in Lexington six years ago costs $50,000. The state and federal governments paid the entire cost. Nine years ago a cement bridge was built on State route 39 at Lucas at a cost of $47,000. The county contributed $3,000 to it, with the state and federal governments paying the rest.

Nine years ago a cement bridge was built over Rocky Fork at the north edge of Mansfield on State route 13 at a cost of $48,000. The county contributed $7,855 to it with the state paying the rest.

These three higher priced structures were built at a time when building materials were less expensive than now.

In the past nine years, bridge construction projects on state routes in the county and inside corporation limits of cities and villages have cost the state and federal governments a total of $270,000. The county paid $28,471 of that amount.

A state law now makes bridge construction on state routes in cities and villages a responsibility of the county commissioners, although the state highway department rarely asks the county to pay even half of the cost.

In the case of the North Main structure, the state asked for a county contribution of half the cost. The state had agreed to share the cost if the county helped finance the grade elimination project now under construction on U. S. route 30-N just west of the city. Commissioners gave $40,000 to the grade elimination job after considerable bickering with the state over the amount.

Greatest Chinese Offensive Under Way

SHANGHAI —(AP)— The greatest offensive of the Chinese army in four and a quarter years of warfare is apparently under way, Japanese army sources said today.

They reported that 80,000 Chunking troops attacked Japanese forces Oct. 3 on all fronts of Central China and said fighting was still in progress north, west and south of Japanese-held Hankow, Yangtze river port.

Japanese said the principal Chinese objective was Ichang, which Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek ordered recaptured, and it was acknowledged that a Chinese division had occupied some frontal positions there briefly. The Japanese declared they later recaptured those positions, with Chinese losses of 300 dead and 100 prisoners.

(Chinese said Tuesday Chinese troops were battling with Japanese in the streets of Ichang, a Yangtze treaty port and western-most zone of Japanese penetration. A Chinese communique last night declared five strategic points around Ichang had been captured and that the Japanese position in that city was precarious.)

U. S. Denies Envoy Won't Return

WASHINGTON —(INS)— State department officials today flatly denied Berlin reports that American Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt will not return to Moscow following his trip to the United States.

Officials also denied the reports that Steinhardt is leading any diplomatic evacuation from the Soviet capital or that he advised Premier Josef Stalin to leave Moscow. The reports were ridiculed as German propaganda, and might even involve America in a deadlock.

(The Japanese statements followed German claims that the Russian army had been destroyed as a fighting force on the eastern front, renewing speculation on the possibility of a new move by Japan in the Far East in event of collapse of the Soviet forces.)

The new warning of possible war moves in the Pacific came as Premier Prince Fummaro Konoye went to the palace to report to Emperor Hirohito on the general state of affairs.

RICHLAND FARM WOMEN NAME MRS. OSWALT TO HEAD GROUP

SHELBY—Mrs. Yvonne Oswalt of near Mansfield was elected president of the Richland County Federation of Farm Women's Clubs during the 20th annual convention Wednesday at the Presbyterian church in Plymouth.

Mrs. Oswalt succeeds Mrs. Mary Hutchinson of Plymouth. Mrs. Harry Stroup of near Shelby was elected vice president.

Some 200 women attended the all-day meeting which was held with the Sunshine club as hostess.

A dinner was served at noon by the Ladies' Aid society of the host church.

Principal speaker for the afternoon session was Miss Elizabeth Bay of Mansfield, county home demonstration agent, who talked on "Our Women's Extension Program."

V. E. Vining of Mansfield spoke on "Knee Deep in Clover" on the evening program. The Busy Bee club of near Shelby was taken into the federation during the convention.

Another meeting of the federation will be held later this year at Rome with the Get Together club as hostess.

VOTE DRIVES TO OPEN NEXT WEEK

Democrats will have started their campaign with a rally at the courthouse, Marshall C. Moore, party campaign manager, said today.

Republicans plan to get their drive for votes under way Oct. 21 at a city-wide rally in Radio City hall on North Walnut street.

Both parties plan to make their campaigns "short and snappy," holding only three or four meetings in large assembly rooms throughout the city.

Party leaders are doubtful of the advantage in a large number of smaller precinct rallies, some of which have been held in past years in school classrooms where there was seating space for only a small group of party workers who accompanied the candidates.

Ralph M. Hardy, Republican executive chairman, said the municipal candidates, headed by Mayor William J. Locke, will be introduced and given a chance to speak at the first meeting.

The Democrats plan three meetings during the final two weeks before election, possibly bringing one or two outside speakers here to discuss campaign issues of national interest, Moore said. The Democratic ticket is headed by Fred M. Bushnell, former Mansfield postmaster.

Neither party so far has made any public gesture in behalf of its candidates, but the candidates themselves have been working in the city's voting precincts, party leaders said.

A non-partisan committee will back the half-mill levy to provide more funds to modernize the fire department and build a fire station in the west side of the city.

CONGRESS GETS FDR MESSAGE

Final Action on Proposal To Arm Merchant Ships Seen Next Week.

be votes to abolish combat zones and permit American merchant vessels to enter belligerent ports, as well, but the administration is believed to be looking first for a sure thing issue which arming ships appears to be.

First action on neutrality is scheduled in the house where Chairman Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.) of the foreign affairs committee is ready with two amendment drafts. One would repeal section six of the act which prohibits the arming of merchant ships. The other would repeal sections six and two, the latter of which authorizes establishment of combat zones and forbids our merchant vessels to enter ports so designated.

Mr. Roosevelt, Bloom, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and others want to scrap all such restrictive legislation. But most of them appeared to be convinced that time might be lost by linking the two propositions because abolition of combat zones is considered a considerably weaker proposal in terms of votes than the arming of ships.

Congressional leaders who met twice this week with Mr. Roosevelt generally agreed that his message would permit delay in disposing of combat zones if it seemed wise to explore congressional sentiment further.

A series of Axis attacks on American-owned shipping culminating in the sinking of the I. C. White from whose crew three persons still are missing combined with unexpected news from Panama to build sentiment for arming American ships.

The I. C. White was one of 104 American-owned vessels sailing under Panamanian registry, a device which enabled those vessels to enter belligerent zones. Some of the American-owned but Panamanian flag ships are armed. But the Panamanian government announced this week that its registry would be withdrawn from any vessel which carried protection against submarine, surface or air attack. About 40 of the Panamanian flag merchant fleet were owned by the United States government.

BERLIN —(U.P.)— The official German news agency DNB reported today in a dispatch from Prague that nine more Czechs had been sentenced to death, bringing the total for the past 24 hours to 23.

Fourteen persons were reported sentenced and executed at Prague yesterday. The nine sentenced today have not yet been executed, DNB said.

vicinity of Orel, east of Bryansk.

"In both cases there is a strong possibility that large Russian forces may become encircled," these sources said.

The British were warned today of dangers to Soviet Russia, and Britain, too, in the mighty German offensive along the Russian battlefront.

But observers failed to see any signs that Britain would take the advice of the Russian navy's organ, Red Fleet, and launch an attack on the European coast which, it said, now was only thinly guarded.

London newspapers ranked the danger to Russia as greater now than at any other time of the 15½-week-old German onslaught in the east and told the public bad news was likely.

"The knife is getting near the artery in Russia," said the Daily Express, published by Minister of Supply Lord Beaverbrook.

"If the answer to the first question is 'yes' and the answer to the second question is 'no' priorities for the critical materials involved will not be issued," the announcement said.

In cases where construction has started and is substantially completed, SPAB said, "efforts will be made to get the critical materials needed to finish the job."

Negotiators Seek Settlement of Midland Steel Tie-Up.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— For the fourth consecutive day, negotiators resumed parleys today seeking settlement of a CIO strike that involves 1,400 workers at Midland Steel Products company and has made 6,000 automobile employes idle.

Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey said he believed all issues could be settled locally and therefore he has not asked for certification of the dispute to the national defense mediation board.

A shortage of automobile frames supplied by Midland forced Studebaker corporation to suspend passenger car production at South Bend, Ind. The Studebaker plant employes about 6,000.

remarked that he was able to put more traffic men on the streets now since other police duties had been assumed by the regular force.

"Previously motorcycle men were called upon to investigate family quarrels or other disturbances in the city," said Boals. "Now, they are free to concentrate on traffic work. This accounts in a great part for the increase in tickets issued."

Boals warned that motorists who have been speeding or "crashing" stop street signs will soon be picked up for their violations. Tuesday night, city council gave Boals funds to purchase signs and paint with which he will post speeding zones in the city.

The commissioner said that the squad had the legal right to arrest persons for speeding during the past two months but that the signs would be posted to give motorists ample warning before wholesale arrests are made.

Radios needed for accident investigation or other traffic duty have been held up by defense orders, Boals explained. He expects to have the motorcycles equipped by the end of the month, however, and from then on "it will be too bad for speeders and motorists who ignore stop signs or traffic lights."

'SOUP' GROVES FACING TRIAL

Karpis Gang Member To Be Taken to Cleveland For Arraignment

CINCINNATI —(INS)— Benson "Soup" Groves, 65, named as the last of the Alvin Karpis gang wanted for the $46,000 mail train robbery at Garrettsville, six years ago, was to be taken to Cleveland today to face prosecution on the five-year-old indictment.

At a preliminary arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Paul Geoghegan, the tastefully dressed little man remained quiet while federal officers described him as a criminal for 40 years, and the "dangerous character" who covered the engineer of the Cleveland-Pittsburgh train on Nov. 7, 1933, while four companions raided the mail compartment.

Groves was arrested on a charge of attempted bank robbery in Cincinnati, and later identified as one of the Karpis gang.

CHAPTER XXII

The county sheriff reached town about 5 p. m. He drove around the streets for 10 minutes then went straight to a telephone and called long distance.

"I want the governor at Austin, ma'am," said he, "and hurry all you can."

"The governor of Texas, sir?"

"That's right."

He had the governor in a bare two minutes, and he outlined the local situation in some terse words. The governor was deeply disturbed.

"You want maybe two, then, eh sheriff?"

"Well sir, I hate to ask for mor'n one, but things look black."

"I'll send two. Phone me again at breakfast."

At a little before 8 p. m. a chartered plane dropped down on the new Rangeville airport and two large, rather quiet Texans stepped off. Each wore ordinary business clothes, western cut, including a characteristic ranch style hat. They nodded to the men at the airport and hired the first car in sight, ordering it to take them straight to town.

They halted in the public square, West street entrance, and talked briefly with three or four men as they looked over the several hundred people visible in this plaza.

"Plenty of rifles and shotguns in sight, Ed," one of the new arrivals said.

"You go left, I'll go right. We'll work towards that drugstore—Hightower's the sign says, yonder on the far corner. Half an hour maybe."

They separated, and the man named Ed came immediately to a group of 18 or 20 men in front of a small cafe. They were arguing hotly. Ed allowed his coat to swing back, revealing a star badge.

"Gentlemen!" he said, impressively.

They turned to gawp at him.

"Texas Rangers are now in charge of this town, gentlemen. I am one of them. There'll be no more trouble, and the streets must be cleared at once. Unload your guns, please. Now."

Nobody moved. A fellow near him, a 25-year-old who had perhaps a week's growth of whiskers, and who held a repeating rifle in his hand, scowled and said "You can go straight to hell!"

Nobody quite saw the next action in detail. At least nobody could remember it afterward. But in a split instant the angry young man was flat on the sidewalk and the Ranger was holding his rifle. There had been one lightning-like first blow.

Quickly, too, the Ranger emptied the rifle magazine and gave it back to the man who was down. In another motion he held back both sides of his coat, then stood with squared legs facing all of them.

"I said," he spoke again with deadly calm, "that Texas Rangers are in charge of this town, and I asked you politely to unload your guns. I'm now telling you to unload in just 30 seconds and start moving quietly to your homes."

Plainly visible under his coat were two pistols and no flaps on the holsters. Texas Ranger pistols. Guns with perhaps the greatest reputation in the world.

There on the cement lay one man who had dared defy this arm of Texas law. And those deadly guns had not yet been drawn. Every man present knew the guns could whip into action with electric speed and destruction.

An elderly man broke his shotgun, took out the two shells. Others glanced at him. Another emptied his rifle. Then another. There was some muttering, but not much. The Ranger watched, grim faced, poised. When they were done he spoke again.

"You two—move off that direction. Now some of you start yonder. You must scatter. And go straight home. If the law needs you downtown we'll summons a posse. Thank you, gentlemen."

The two Rangers met at Hightower's drug store and with calm deliberateness went to the soda fountain to eat a sandwich for their supper. They eyed the street constantly, though. Bubba Hightower probed them.

"You Rangers aim to patrol the whole town?"

"Won't be necessary," the man named Ed explained. "We have done enough. Word of our presence gets around fast. The square is about clear already, and common sense will take charge again in an hour or so."

"Doggone!" murmured Bubba, in real tribute.

"The Texas Rangers, son, are backed by the citizens themselves. We seldom use force. We represent what the citizens know is the force of intelligent opinion, and the very men we order home will thank us tomorrow. We don't even know what your riot is about yet, but they're all alike. People get excited, worried, angry without cause. You've got a nice looking town here. Business ought to be humming.

"It is," sair Bubba. "It is."

It was almost midnight when Dal Tower climbed the stairs to his and Dr. Watkins' office. He knew he would find his elderly associate there waiting for him despite the late hour. He tossed his hat wearily on a couch and flopped down beside it, combing his hair with his fingers, elbows on his knees.

"Well," he began. "Things have quieted down, doctor. The Rangers saved our faces: I have just left the courthouse, too. Martin is charged with criminal assault; that is, assault with intent to kill. It's plenty serious."

The elderly man took some time removing his glasses, wiping them, looking at his protege.

"It is serious, son," he agreed, quietly. "Is he—in jail?"

"No sir. We made him stay out. They wanted $5,000 bond. I could write a check for $2,000—about all I had—and we got Flim Craig from the bank to okay it. Then I asked M. J. Parker for some. Thad Monroe came in then with the rest. He wanted to furnish it all, but—"

"You went Martin's bond? You yourself, son?"

"In part, only. I didn't have enough."

"I know, but—the gesture," Old Dr. Watkins was nodding. "It was you he tried to kill."

"I gave him cause. I challenged his speech. And anyway—when I came I cut in on his girl. Or tried to."

Or. Watkins considered these facts for a long quiet moment.

"Son," he spoke slowly then. "I am proud to have my practice going to you. You are living up to my hopes." The old doctor was going sentimental again, Dal knew, but Dal responded to the kindliness of it. He listened closely. "You did like Miss Lillian, didn't you? I sort of figured you would when I sent you out that first night. Now Martin has been—well, there had been an 'understanding' about him and Lillian for years. Or at least until Thad Monroe came to town. You know how it is. But life just seemed to rock along. You disrupted their little nest, I observe!"

"Dr. Watkins, I couldn't help what happened any more than I could stop the sunrise!" Dal was suddenly anxious to talk. "The moment I saw Lillian I—" He stopped mid-sentence to gaze off, remembering, face drawn. Dr. Watkins waited but Dal never quite finished.

"And then something happened, son?"

"Yes sir."

"It often does. Do you—want to tell me?" It was an infinitely kind invitation from the old gray-headed physician."

"We were at a dance in Kilgore, first thing. Some dizzy girl was damnably rude to Lillian. The girl hapened to be a patient I had back in the Cleveland hospital where I was interne. She—well, she fell for me, sir. I mean, she thought she could make me—make me—well you know how it is. She was pretty sick at first. I had to kid her along a week or two; but nothing unfair, damn it! She was married to a gambler, lived with him off and on. I imagine they drifted down here to join the oil boom. I had nothing to do with her. Had forgotten her, in fact. A patient, nothing else. She popped up in Kilgore to make a scene. Slapped Lillian, and pushed her down—all that. Drunk. Lillian hit the sky."

The old doctor nodded.

"I had to carry Lillian out of the dance hall and force her into my car. All the way home I explained. She clapped her hands around her ears and stamped the car floor and told me she hoped she never saw me again and—and—oh, all sorts of talk. Wouldn't hear the explanation. It took me weeks to get out my side of it, by degrees. I think she's gotten over most of her feelings about that, now, but—"

"Son, that sort of indignity would upset a Mayfield tremendously. They are an old, proud family here, understand. Fine people, fine people indeed! But—well a type. We must love them and be patient with them and know them for their goodness!"

"I finally figured that out, all right. And just today she told me she wasn't angry about that dance hall business any more. Nevertheless, there's a coldness. I mean, a sort of wall between us. I suppose she resents my being a stranger, or a northerner. I had to bump her boy friend around some. And then this shooting. Judas!"

Silence held for a long minute or two between them, and then old Doc Watkins smiled a little and said, "I don't know for sure, son, but I think maybe all these things are good signs."

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

My father did not answer my question at once; simply stretched out his hand for the letter and envelope, and Harry Underwood looked over his shoulder as he read them. I was not surprised to see the big man's face darken as he read the words which I already had scanned hurriedly, nor to hear him utter:

"Oh, poor Lil! This must have crushed her when she read it. This is simply unbelievable."

I could not offer him any comforting explanation. That was my father's prerogative, and he immediately came to the rescue.

"It is not to be believed, Harry," he said gravely, "as I shall explain to you immediately. I had not yet reached that point, Margaret,"—he paused significantly — "when you came in. Now, if you will copy that letter and the envelope, as quickly as possible—but meticulously; every comma and syllable exactly transcribed, paying especial attention to the spelling—I shall not need the originals, and you may replace them where you found them, trusting that Lillian will not detect the ruse until we have time to explain things to her."

Must Look Like Original.

He handed me the letter and envelope, but kept his hand on mine until he had uttered a final injunction.

"Try to find paper as nearly like this as possible, even if you have to send Miss Whitlock out to a neighboring shop for it. If there is none, cut and fold other paper into the same shape as this, putting the same number of words on each page. I want the letter to look as nearly like the original as possible."

He took his hand from mine, and I knew that he expected me to go about my errand immediately.

"I understand," I said, moving toward the door, "and I shall work as fast as I possibly can, without sacrificing care."

"I know that," he said, smiling at me, and I went out swiftly, fairly racing up the stairs to Lillian's rooms.

Everything Ready.

I entered without knocking—the nurse had left the door ajar—and found her putting the threaded needles for which I had asked into the cushioned sides of Lillian's work basket.

"Everything is ready," she said. "Paper, pens and ink are laid out on the desk."

"Thank you," I said mechanically. Then, crossing to the desk, I took up the paper and compared it with that on which the letter I carried was written.

They were of entirely different texture, but the blank sheets were larger, and could be cut down to the size of the other. With the sheet in my hand I turned to Miss Whitlock.

"Where is the nearest stationery shop?" I asked.

She named the location, and I made a quick mental calculation.

"Five blocks from here." I computed. "Do you think you could match this paper there?"

I held out the letter to her, and she looked it over carefully.

"I do not know," she said. "It is a high class store. This is cheap paper, but they may carry it."

I made a swift decision, and held out my hand for the letter.

"The chance of matching it isn't worth the trip," I said, "and I shall tell my father that. Now, I shall need your help."

"I am at your service," she said. "Please clear a table and place two chairs side by side for you and me, with a bottle of ink, pens and blotters for each of us. Be sure the ink in both bottles is of the same color. By that time I hope to be ready for you."

I picked up the scissors from the table, went to the desk, and with no thought for the care of Lillian's "dressmaking shears," spread out the written letter upon two sheets of larger blank paper, matching the edges of two sides and securing them with small clips.

Then, holding the other parts tightly together, I cut the other two edges of the larger sheets, and finally, with the original letter and two blanks for copying, I crossed to the table where Miss Whitlock had completed the preparations for which I had asked.

"Will you make a second copy of this while I make the first?" I asked.

Take Out Good Looks Insurance

By MME. QUI VIVE

You cannot paint the lily and the rose, said the poet, but he should be alive today to see what Lily and Rosie are doing in the way of slinging pigment. Commercial blushes and cherry red lips blazing enough to make the public eye go dizzy! Of course Lily and Rosie don't know that they're behind the times, that wild and frenzied face decorations belong to a period that has passed. They don't suit the hats or the dresses we wear. Styles have gone back to the period when women looked like human beings, not caricatures of the frail sex.

Materials there are aplenty to create the blushing cheek, the blood red lips, the dewy eyes. You get them at the cosmetic counter at a reasonable price, but what good do they do if you don't know how to use them to best advantage? Many a painted lady would look years younger, if she washed away the drug store beauty, showed the world a face free of artifice. Makeup does not suit every type. There are exotic ladies who need makeup, who don't look natural without it.

The trick is to highlight the good features and soft pedal the poor ones—if you have any. To do that requires activity of the brain works. You have to have the seeing eye, a mirror placed in a strong light, a steady hand.

Don't put on a lot and then try to take some off; the method won't work. In this case, addition is bettter than subtraction. Dip the puff lightly into the powder, apply sparingly. Not first to the nose when the pad has its heaviest load. The nose should get the leavings, because it usually has an oilier surface than skin elsewhere and it grabs powder. When the entire area is treated, smooth with flattened fingers. Grinding powder into the skin is the best possible way of getting coarse pores.

Select a shade slightly darker than the skin and, if your nose is large, have an even darker powder for that. If you use the rouge compact, touch the eyelids and the cheek bones. Rouge placed low imparts an appearance of fatigue, seems to draw from the facial tissues.

Plunge an orangewood stick into lip rouge, sketch a clear cut outline. Then fill in. Keep the lips stretched so all the little creases will be filled. Touch the inner surfaces of the lips, but don't put on so much that the teeth will pick it up. Rouged teeth never have been, never will be au fait.

The most popular shades of lip tints are natural tones. Chinese red, nasturtium, vermillion, geranium have had their day.

Meringue.

1 cup granulated sugar
6 egg whites

Beat egg whites until foamy, add sugar gradually and continue beating until stiff. To make the Alaska: when ready to serve, put the butter-sponge cake on a board which has been covered with a piece of heavy brown paper. Unmold French ice cream on to cake, or pile it high in a dome shape. Cover with the meringue, sprinkle with a little sugar and place in a hot oven (500° F.) to brown lightly—3 to 4 minutes. Will serve 8 to 10.

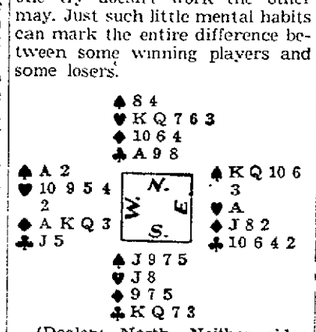
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HAVE AN EXTRA CHANCE

It should be obvious that staking your chances entirely on one factor is unsound if you can add still another possible means of success. Many fair players seem never to learn this, however. As soon as they see one possible way to make their contract, if certain missing cards are placed as they wish, they begin play according to that plan. Just another moment of study may show them that, without impairing that possibility, they can add another, so that if one try doesn't work the other may. Just such little mental habits can mark the entire difference between some winning players and some losers.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

This deal got into 4-Spades by East at most tables of a duplicate, the lead in most cases being the club K. Seeing the dummy's shortage in that suit, South then switched to the heart J, being able to read from the bidding that his partner probably had some heart honors. In each case East naturally won that trick with the heart A. The very next play illustrated the difference between good and bad work.

Several declarers saw at a glance that, if the spades broke evenly, they could get five tricks in trumps, one in hearts and four in diamonds, so promptly tried three rounds of trumps. That set up the spade J as a second trick for the defenders and also made it impossible to keep from losing two more club tricks, beating the contract.

One declarer tried to protect himself against a bad trump break by seeking a ruffing trick in clubs. So to the third trick he led the club 4 to the J. North won with the A and, seeing what he was trying, led back his spade 8. The A won that, the diamond 3 was led to the J and the club 4 was ruffed with the spade 2. Now the contract was safe, as the spade 9 was the only other loser.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If West bids 1-Heart on this deal, and North passes, what should East do and why?

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Oct. 10.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

PARTICULAR enterprise and initiative should be justified in expecting rich rewards and approbation, according to the interesting mutual and lunar aspects. Under this benefic rule projects, plans, ambitions of major scope should be pushed to the utmost, with promise of splendid cooperation from big business, ready to be lavish in funds for promotion. But plans and propositions must be well organized on constructive lines and pursued with vim and high pressure tactics but not intemperately or wildly.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of great opportunity for bold strokes of initiative and enterprise, possibly in new directions of new supporting associates. These should be ready with promotion capital and rich rewards if such audacious proposals measure up to claims. Well-organized and entirely constructive and practical projects are sure to attain grand culminations.

Shattered romances, emotional or nervous upsets may manifest in private affairs.

A child born on this day should have many practical creative gifts, with energy, initiative, much ambition and indomitable will to attain it. Its danger will be in carrying its virtues to excess or over expansion. There may be reactions in its emotional or romantic life.

C. L. OF C.

Twelve tables were in play Tuesday when members of the C. L. of C. met in the club rooms, Bird building. Mrs. Harry Landis and her committee were in charge of arrangements. Bridge prizes were won by Mrs. A. E. Weakland and Mrs. George Stuhldreher and five hundred by Mrs. Joseph Schopp and Mrs. Dan Nagle. Miss Betty Toth won the club prize. At the close of the evening a luncheon was served with fall flowers decorating the tables. Guests for the meeting were Miss Toth of Philadelphia, Mrs. Wilbred Feigenbaum and Mrs. J. F. Enderle. The next meeting will be held Oct. 21 in the club rooms for a business session.

WHAT, NO COLLEGE EDUCATION? Well, young man, business competition is rather keen. Things are moving along at a rapid pace these days . . . hardly a thing that isn't streamlined, but you may get along without a college diploma in coping with other young men in the "Congested Area" of business traffic.

With or without a "sheepskin," it depends on your mental attitude . . . your ambition . . . your determination . . . and of course, your experience, if any.

Newspaper Boys with the advantage of at least a high school education have that PLUS-value known as fundamental experience. They have learned how to deal with people . . . about finance, selling, promotion . . . about promptness among other basic essentials so necessary to progress. They have had the "roughness" taken off, and their wits are sharpened, ready for the next shift into "high."

That is why we repeat: "A Newspaper Boy is Years Ahead of a Boy Without Similar Experience"
—and—
"A Newspaper Route is the Best Job for a School Boy."

ORDAINS FIVE ON SUNDAY AT SACRED HEART

Noted Bishop From South Sea Islands To Perform Ordination.

(Pictures on Page 17)

A member of the society of Missionaries of the Sacred Heart, Rev. Gerhard J. Vesters, M. S. C., D. D., O. B. E., former Vicar Apostolic Mission bishop of Rabul, South Sea Islands, will ordain five seminarians at the Sacred Heart Seminary chapel on State Route 39, northwest of Mansfield Sunday.

Those to be ordained include Bernard Hawkins, Philip Yandrisevitz, John Schag, John Paukovitz and Leo Paukovits.

A guest at the seminary since last Friday Bishop Vesters will leave for Melbourne, Australia, soon after the ordinations here Sunday.

Traveling in the United States in the interest of the mission since his return from the southern Pacific islands a few weeks ago, Bishop Vesters will deliver an address on the missions.

Bishop Vesters was ordained a priest in 1903 in Rome. As a missionary he worked first in the Philippine Islands and Brazil. He was then appointed Perfect Apostolic of Celebes, Dutch East Indies. In 1923 he was consecrated bishop and appointed Vicar Apostolic of the Vicariate Apostolic of Rabaul, New Britain, South Sea Islands.

Under his leadership the mission diocese of Rabaul developed into a Christian organization consisting of 70,000 baptized, 23,000 catechumens, 67 priests, over 100 white sisters and 45 native sisters, 500 native catechists, and 15,000 pupils in various mission schools.

The mission made great strides to solve the social problem among the natives in erecting orphanages, hospitals, a maternity hospital, and a leper station. Over half a million medical treatments per year are being given in these mission hospitals.

In 1904 the young mission received its baptism of blood, when ten missionaries were killed by the savages.

Beside sthe present crisis caused by the World war the mission suffered heavily from earthquakes and volcanic eruptions. The most devastating of these took place in 1937 when 500 natives were killed and an area of hundreds of square miles was laid waste. The mission of Rabaul then gave hospitality and medical treatment to thousands of refugees without distinction of race or creed. In recognition of their charitable work several missionaries were decorated by the British government. Bishop Vesters received the Order of the British Empire. (O. B. E.)

Due to ill health, Bishop Vesters resigned his diocese in 1939. In recognition for his work he was appointed the same year bishop at the Papal Throne and Papal Count. Despite the fact that he has resigned his diocese, the welfare of the mission formerly under his direction, still remains his greater interest.

Having studied in many countries of Europe and having labored in many lands as a missionary, Bishop Vesters acquired a workable knowledge in many European and native languages. Among them are, Dutch, his native tongue, English, German, French, Italian, and Portuguese.

Ashlander Seeks $27,000 In Suit To Break Will

ASHLAND — Suit for punitive damages of $27,500 has been filed in Ashland common pleas court by C. W. Eagle against Pearl Kreiling, Fern Eleanor Myers, J. F. Henderson and Robert R. Henderson, the plaintiff contending the first two named defendants, his sisters, and the other two defendants, Ashland attorneys, conspired to defeat him of his share in his mother's estate.

The plaintiff contends in his petition that on Dec. 1, 1938, the defendants wrote a will and procured the signature of the plaintiff's mother, Ellen Eagle, and dated the will Jan. 27, 1922. Under terms of this will the plaintiff was bequeathed $1, and this will was submitted to probate following the death of his mother on May 15, 1939.

The will, according to the plaintiff, was written on legal blanks, which were not manufactured prior to April 25, 1932, and he further alleges that on Dec. 1, 1938, Ellen Eagle was incompetent and lacking in legal capacity to execute a will. He further claims that the said Ellen Eagle did execute a will on Jan. 27, 1922, in which he was given an equal share in her estate and that this will was cancelled and suppressed by the defendants.

Heading South—

But work goes on to assure your gas supply next winter

Birds escape the problem of winter by going south, but we in the gas business must meet it by making gas available to our customers during the most extreme weather conditions. For months — ever since last spring — The Gas Company has taken advantage of the lighter gas demands of summer to put its entire system in order for the winter ahead. This year the hundreds of defense industries which use gas in their manufacturing processes have added greatly to our responsibilities — and expenditures.

Hundreds of new gas wells are being drilled. Other gas is being brought from West Virginia and Kentucky and forced back into the ground in our Ohio storage fields to make it more available to the markets.

Our transmission system of many compressor stations and thousands of miles of lines is being repaired, replaced or shifted to handle increased service when and where the demands may arise. The lines and regulators within your community have been tested and altered to prevent any bottleneck in our service.

We are investing OVER SIX AND ONE-HALF MILLION DOLLARS in this program of getting ready for conditions this winter that were not with us last season. Perhaps on only a few of the coldest days will our entire capacity be needed, but this preparation is your assurance that gas service will be ready to meet your most critical demands.

The Gas Company

Laying a new 12-inch, all-welded line testing at 800 pounds pressure from the Benton Storage Field to Crawford Compressor Station at Sugar Grove. It will permit taking gas from storage faster on a peak day.

ARMY SHOPS IN GREAT BIG WAY TO FILL PANTRY

Quartermaster's Depot Spends $5,000,000 Monthly To Feed 1,500,000.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — Dedicated to the proposition that an army travels on its stomach, the Chicago quartermaster depot has begun to spend more than $5,000,000 a month on victuals.

Since the beginning of the defense emergency two years ago it has become the principal pantry of the U. S. army, shopping for a family of approximately 1,500,000.

It buys 2,000,000 pounds of fresh frozen beef every week and places an order for 20,000,000 pounds of flour four times a year. This month it was on the market for 35,368,800 cans of tomatoes, 25,000,000 cans of corn, 22,131,600 cans of peas and 5,444,400 cans of spinach.

Col. Henry B. Barry, Q. M. C., commanding officer of the depot, believes that it is developing into the largest single purchases of meats and groceries in the country.

Supplies piled up at the depot are delivered to military posts throughout the United States. Its loading platforms, all under roof, can accommodate 72 freight cars a day and 50 motor trucks at one time.

The pricipal duties of the quartermaster corps, Col. Barry explained, are to feed, clothe, house and transport the army. Here and in eight other original depots in each army corps area the Q. M. C. handles all supplies common to two or more branches of the service.

Although its chief job is the procurement of foods, the Chicago depot also buys all the coal and coke used by the army, most of the beds and cots, and about 2,100 other items ranging from moth balls to snowshoes.

It keeps fires going under three large roasters capable of turning out 1,000 pounds of aromatic coffee every 20 minutes. The depot buys its coffee green and sees to it that 1,000,000 pounds are on hand at all times, so that the beans can be roasted just before shipment.

All this activity goes on in three great buildings stretching for more than a block along west Pershing road on the south side. One of them was built in 1912 and saw service in the last World war. The others were finished shortly afterward, so that now the Q. M. C. has almost 2,000,000 square feet of floor space to work on. Railroad sidings running into the building connect with 25 trunk lines operated out of Chicago.

The depot's staff has increased about 500 per cent in the last two years, bringing the total number of civilians employed there to 1,500, with about 100 army officers supervising them.

Purchases shot up even a greater degree. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1939, the depot ordered only $3,974,577.47 worth of goods. It increased this figure to $9,025,516.77 during the next year, while for the year ended June 30, 1941, expenditures totaled $38,275,670.48. June purchases alone reached $10,452,380.26.

'CHUTE TROOPER

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(U.P.)—Lawrence Nicklaus thought he'd make a good parachute trooper for the U. S. Marines and he told the recruiting sergeant so.

Dubious, the sergeant inquired about Nicklaus' health and found it satisfactory. Then as a matter of routine he asked the applicant if he had any previous experience.

"Just four years," Nicklaus said. "I used to be a parachute jumper with an aerial circus."

GEN. JOHNSON: AFL Ready to Accede to No-Strike Plea

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—Whatever else may be said about it, there was some consistency in the neutrality legislation when our policy was to keep out of the war in Europe and, to that end, it forbade the risking of American lives, property and dollars in combat zones.

Johnson

But when that policy was completely reversed in the lease-lend act and the president was authorized in his sole discretion to risk both American property and dollars in unprecedented amounts whenever and wherever on the broad service of the globe he decided, the neutrality acts became obsolete. They now only serve to create an added danger of risk to the sacrifice we are making.

Once the foundation in which they rested is pulled out from under them it is hard to see any difference between their outright repeal and some piecemeal monkey business this side of that.

Arming merchant ships is an expedient of very little value. It now takes too much technical equipment and crew to make it very effective against submarines and especially against combined submarine and aircraft attack. We haven't got either the equipment or the trained men to make more than a gesture at effective armament.

Anyway, there is a good deal of hokum about getting congressional authority to arm merchant ships. It is pretty well understood in Washington that we have already armed several and that the most recently torpedoed merchantman was one of these.

The first real question is whether American flag ships shall be permitted to sail into combat areas. That also has been done. The suggestion of Senator Pepper that we can get around the prohibitions of the neutrality act on that by simply having the president un-proclaim his own proclaimed combat zones and say that what palpably is a combat zone is really not one, is nothing short of immoral. If we are going to lift this ban, let's do it honestly—by repealing that provision of the neutrality act.

Then comes another question, far more vital. After we have lifted the ban and an American flag ship, carrying contraband of war is sunk while trying to crash an area under actual blockade, does that mean we are automatically at war?

It is hard to see what we have to gain by getting into the war now. We are not yet ready for it. It is hard to see what Britain has to gain by our getting into war now. That is more important, because we seem to do about what Britain wants. We are sending her all the supplies we can deliver and have promised her far more.

But, if we get into this war ourselves, our shipments abroad will be much more closely scanned and our people will demand a far greater share for our own defense and armaments.

On these considerations, it seems that a filibuster against repeal of the neutrality act would be very unpopular in this country. In the end it could do no good, and it could do much harm. This column is not and never has been for unnecessary involvement in this war.

It is for an impregnable American defense and superiority on all fronts—in the air, on sea and land, economically and on the home front—the preservation of civilian morale and of our business system.

It feels that we are weakening these defenses on several of these fronts. But, this is war, and when congress makes such a decision as it did in the lease-lend act, it feels a duty to support that decision.

Hugh S. Johnson.

SEE PASSAGE OF NEW LEASE-LEND WITHOUT CHANGE

Leaders Believe Opposition Collapses on Giving Aid To Russia.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—House Republican and Democratic leaders today predicted that the new $5,985,000,000 lend-lease appropriation would pass without substantial change and without serious opposition.

Leaders of both parties believed the campaign to bar use of the funds to aid Soviet Russia was collapsing.

Rep. John Taber, R., N. Y., ranking Republican member of the appropriations commitee, who will vote for the bill but will seek to reduce the amount, predicted that the anti-Russian aid amendment would not get more than 25 votes.

"At the most," he said, "it won't get 50 votes."

Reps. Stephen A. Day (R., Ill.), Robert F. Jones (R., O.), and William P. Lambertson (R., Kans.), planned to support an amendment that would bar lend-lease aid to Russia, but they have not decided yet who will offer it.

General debate on the bill closes this afternoon. Amendments will be considered tomorrow with a prospect of passage by tomorrow night.

Lambertson said he would move to recommit the bill with instructions to strike out its entire $5,985,000,000 lend-lease allocation. The bill also includes about $175,000,000 for defense.

Taber plans to lead a Republican fight to make substantial reductions in the size of the grant on the ground that many items have not been justified. He will ask that $300,000,000 be struck from the $1,875,000,000 item for farm and industrial commodities.

He said the full amount of this category was wholly unjustified, that at least $300,000,000 of it was sheer "wind."

Rep. Robert F. Jones, R., from Lima, O., however, accused British officials of "colossal misrepresentations" in detailing their war materiel requirements to the U. S.

Jones, member of the appropriations committee which is considering a request for $5,985,000,000 additional lend-lease funds, claimed that unwarranted British demands for U. S. materiel has threatened the success of this country's defense program.

He asked dissolution of a joint British-American aircraft committee appointed by President Roosevelt to allocate U. S. warplane production between the two countries.

Many housewives have window-seat gardens but Mrs. W. S. Trine, 159 South Adams street has one that is unique. Several weeks ago, the Trines had the kitchen remodeled. Recently, however, Mrs. Trine discovered that some Japanese morning glories growing outside the kitchen window had outwitted the new carpentry and were forcing themselves through the kitchen wall. At present, there are a dozen blossoms in the kitchen which kept their freshness day in and day out without care.

A new book, "A Man-Made God," which recently went on sale in Mansfield and other cities, was writen by W. A. Wickline, former superintendent of the Lexington schools. Wickline resigned at Lexington last spring to become northern Ohio representative for the Strathmore Educational Service. His book deals with tolerance and understanding as the goal of modern education. Louis Bromfield wrote the foreword for the book. Dickline said he has received widespread favorable comment on his work. He is now living in Oberlin.

And she's definitely photogenic according to the adds that have reached here.

DELEGATES IN ACCORD WITH GREEN REQUEST

Union Head Appeals To Men To Stay on Defense Jobs; Hits Peace With CIO.

(By United Press)

SEATTLE, Wash. — American Federation of Labor leaders today appeared ready to accede to the requests of President Roosevelt and AFL President William Green for an end to defense strikes.

Among the 600 delegates present for the AFL annual convention there was no dissension to Green's radio address last night in which he appealed to all union members to "stay on the job and keep defense production going full blast."

"I appeal to every man and woman of the AFL to remember at all times and under all circumstances that the national interest comes first," he said. "I urge them not to gamble for pennies at the risk of losing everything we hold dear in America."

The reaction among AFL leaders was summarized by Daniel J. Tobin, Teamsters union president and AFL vice president, who viewed the address as a clear statement of Federation policy.

"There can be no question that we are committed to a policy of fullest cooperation in defense production," he said.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a message to the convention Tuesday, urged that the union prevent work stoppages in the interest of national defense.

Green said he agreed "100 per cent" with the president's statement that "only by united action can we turn back the Nazi threat." He cited agreements between the AFL metal trades, and building and construction trades unions and the government, guaranteeing against work stoppages because of jurisdictional disputes between AFL unions.

A part of his prepared speech which rebuffed the president's plea for peace between the AFL and the Congress of Industrial Organizations was deleted because of lack of radio time, but Green gave it to the press as a statement of his AFL's stand.

"Under the circumstances," he said, "I am compelled to say to the president of the United States—there is no point in directing further appeals on this subject to the American Federation of Labor.

"We are willing to talk peace and make peace at any time we are accorded an opportunity to do so. We suggest that you direct your future appeals to the CIO with all the influence at your command until the representatives of that organization agree to confer with us."

TAFT OFFERS COUNTER BILL

Says He'll Present Own Price Control Measure, Vesting Power In Board.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Sen. Robert A. Taft (R.-O.) said he would introduce today a price control bill vesting power to fix commodity prices in a five man board and "substantially" modifying an administration proposal now before the house banking and currency committee.

Taft's measure would require the board to conduct hearings before issuing a price order and would not contain a licensing system of enforcement.

The present version of the measure, approved by price control administrator Leon Henderson, would grant price fixing power to a single administrator, presumably Henderson, and would license all firms affected by price control.

Taft said in a statement that his bill would grant price fixing authority only on commodity prices, margins and commissions, and would not include powers in connection with business practices and "other details" of private business, contained in the present draft.

Taft's bill would contain no provision for control of wages, but would instruct government agencies dealing with wage problems to pursue a general policy of wage stabilization at levels corresponding to that of commodity prices. his bill would terminate price fixing powers on July 1, 1943, while no termination clause is included in the administration bill.

Snyder said the accident occurred while the party was returning home from the Loudonville street fair. The right front tire on the car blew out and the machine crashed into a tree.

ENTERTAINMENT WORLD MOURNS TORCH SINGER HELEN MORGAN

(Picture on Page 16)

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—The entertainment world mourned today the death of another tinsel heroine of the prohibition era, sad-voiced Helen Morgan who rode to fame on a grand piano.

The singer of early songs died last night in a small room in Henrotin hospital, about the size of the cozy litle speakeasies where she begatn the career that brought her international triumphs. At her bedside were her mother, Mrs. Lulu Morgan of High Falls, N. Y., her husband, Lloyd Johnson, Los Angeles automobile salesman, and several intimate friends.

She had been in a coma since Sept. 30. Three days earlier she had undergone an operation for the liver and kidney ailments that plagued her intermittently throughout her 23-year career, which began in Chicago shortly after she arrived from Danville, Ill., at the age of 18.

She lapsed into unconsciousness three days after the operation and failed to revive, despite 13 blood transfusions.

Johnson said funeral services would be at one of the Catholic churches in La Grange, a Chicago suburb, and that burial also would be in La Grange. The funeral date had not been set.

Miss Morgan came to Chicago just as the golden twenties were beginning to roll.

A beautiful girl with a sad voice and sultry manner, she worked on the belt line of a cracker plant, sold ribbons in a department store, did manicures. Attracted by her voice, local theatrical men sent her to Montreal, Que., to study singing. She won a Canadian national beauty contest.

She came back to sing in cabarets. Dramatic Critic Amy Leslie sent her to New York and was instrumental in getting her engagements with George White and Flo Ziegfeld. She played in the latter's "Sally" and later in White's 1925 "Scandals." Successful appearances in London and Paris followed, then the radio and Hollywood where she played the burlesque queen in "Applause" and starred in "Glorifying the American Girl," "Roadhouse Lights," "The Lemon Drop Kid," "Frankie and Johnnie," and others. Her first big stage role was Julie in Ziegfeld's "Show Boat."

Her greatest popularity was in the night clubs, earned with such torch ballads as "My Bill," "Can't Help Lovin' That Man," and "Why Was I Born?"

She had married Maurice (Buddy) Maschke in 1933 and divorced him in 1935. She married Johnson last July.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Charles Mayer, at home; a son, George Yeingst of DuBois, Pa.; a brother, Benjamin Jones of Cleveland; and a sister, Mrs. Eleanor Kruschel of Miami, Fla.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Friday in the Jones Memorial, with Rev. E. G. Corwin, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

DISCUSS FOOD

County Delegates at Akron Conference on Quotas.

A 40 per cent increase in hog production in Richland county for 1942 and smaller increases in the county's output of beef and veal, eggs, milk, and vegetables were suggested today at a district meeting of "food-for-defense" committees at Akron.

Complete quotas for Richland and other northcentral Ohio counties in the campaign to produce more food for England were expected to be available following the meeting in which 28 counties participated.

A delegation of Richland county farm leaders and members of the county "food-for-defense" committee attended the session. In the group were Guy L. Taylor, county AAA chairman and head of the defense committee; County Agent George B. Ganyard; J. Alden Payn, county FSA manager, and Mrs. Helen Baer, county FSA home supervisor.

Serving on the county committee with Taylor are Ganyard, Payn, Albert Feck, of the federal soil conservation service, and W. E. Stough, representing the federal farm credit organization.

FARM WOMEN PICK LEADERS

PLYMOUTH—Climaxing an all-day session here yesterday, the Richland county Federation of Farm Women concluded its 20th annual convention with election of officers.

Mrs. Vonie Oswalt, Mansfield R. D. 1, was elected president for a two-year term to succeed Mrs. Mary Hutchinson of Plymouth, who has headed the organization for the past two years.

Other oficers named were Mrs. Nora Stroup, Shelby, vice president; Mrs. Ruth Forsythe, Shiloh, secretary; Mrs. Nora Brown, Shiloh, treasurer, and Mrs. Ina Boyce, Shiloh, reporter.

The Rome Country club will be hostess to the 21st annual session to be held in October 1942.

FDR Says Electrification Will Be Stepped Up.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt declared in a letter made public today by Representative Gehrmann (Prog., Wis.) that it was likely the electrification program would be stepped up sharply as defense production tapered off.

"Expanded activity in rural electrification promises to be one of our staunchest supports in the transition from a defense to a peace-time economy," the president wrote Gehrmann.

Empties Pistol Into Man's Body In Last Embrace

NEW YORK—(INS)—Taking her boy friend, Gus Scaletta, 27, into her arms for a farewell kiss—after he told her he was "through with her" after a five-year engagement—24-year-old Mary Citorino today emptied a pistol into him while they stood in close embrace in the hall of her Brooklyn home.

Scaletta, a welder in the Brooklyn navy yard, fell to the floor with two bullet wounds in his abdomen and one in the right arm. A fourth shot went wild. Police, who responded to an alarm by passersby who heard the shooting, rushed the youth to the hospital and arrested the girl on a felonious assault charge.

At King's County hospital, doctors said the youth was dying. Police quoted Mary as saying that Scaletta had taken his ring back four months ago, and that early today, after returning from a date at the movies, he told her that he was in love with another girl, and that this was the "last time" he was going to call.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Toward the fag end of the Ohio State league baseball season (remember?) there was plenty of talk tossed about that Mansfield would be in the Mid-Atlantic league next season.

Some fans passed the chatter along as mere rumor, others as an unverified report, and some would look you straight in the eye and declare absolutely they had the dope straight from the old feed box.

The New York Yankees, so the story had it, were fed up with Akron and were ready, willing, and anxious to bring their Akron Yankees to Mansfield. Nothing happened.

* * *

Now a new story is going the rounds It's to the effect that the Cleveland Indians are prepared to move their Charleston franchise to Mansfield and bring back here all the Mansfield Braves sent up to the Mid-Atlantic this fall.

"Nothing to it" asserts President George Satterlee of the Braves "Nothing can be done until after league meetings, and we're still waiting for Joe Donnelly to call an Ohio State league meeting which was supposed to have been held in September.

"And you can put this down in the book for true: No major league team will come in here until Mansfield gets a ball park. They won't take a chance on small gates and injured players at the Fairground."

That seems to put the bloomer on the rumor, but other red lights are developing toward a possible promotion of Mansfield from the Class D Ohio State circuit up to the Class C Mid-Atlantic.

One stop sign is the determined effort being made by Ducky Holmes at Dayton to have the Mid-Atlantic made a Class B circuit. He contends that the population of Mid-Atlantic cities is much greater than some of the present Class B loops, and that the league towns deserve, and would support better ball than they are now getting.

Mid-Atlantic President Elmer Daily says he will keep hands off the Dayton argument, and let the league decide for itself.

And then there's the Zanesville specie to scare mail cities away from Mid-Atlantic berths

All season long officials of other Mid-Atlantic clubs and big league scouts marveled at the big crowds packed into the Zanesville ball park in an uphill place club Our Mr. Buzz Wetzel chief of the Cleveland farm system and patron saint of the Braves was one of those fooled by the Zanesville gate phenomenon

* * *

Now League Prexy Daily reports that Zanesville not only didn't make money. It lost at least $7,000: The club's books are in such shape that no one knows how much more it lost. Daily has offered to pay part of the expense of having the books audited.

Tygers to Start All Regulars

Escaped Injury in Game With Sandusky.

MANSFIELD high Tygers are in their best condition of the season for their game at Newark tomorrow night, and there's no question about whether the regular lineup will start, Coach Paul Snyder said today.

In spite of the hard, gruelling battle the Tygers put up against Sandusky last Friday night, the boys came out of it without any injury serious enough to affect their preparation for the Newark game.

* * *

It appears that Mansfield will need to be at full strength in meeting the undefeated Newark club, which boasts a strong line and a speedy backfield.

It's getting to be an old story now, this report of Mansfield scouts, that each new opponent for the Tygers is tougher than any yet encountered, but it isn't a wolf story. It's true enough.

Sandusky was stronger than Elyria and Akron West, and now comes Newark, rated by the scouts as stronger than Sandusky And next week the undefeated and untied Springfield Wildcats come here, rated as stronger than Newark, and the following week the Tygers go to Massillon.

* * *

Scout Vern Hoffman gave the Downtown Coaches the dope on Newark at their meeting last night at the high school gym. Newark, he said, has a line that will give the Mansfield forward wall its first really tough night of the season, and the five sprinters the Wildcats sent to the Mansfield relays last spring take turns in carrying the mail in the backfield. If they ever get loose the Tygers may not be able to catch them.

* * *

There's plenty of respect in Newark for this Mansfield club too. Assistant Coach Leonard Wilhelm, who scouted the Mansfield-Sandusky game, returned to Newark with this news:

* * *

"Mansfield is the best high school team I've seen this season. Only the soggy field kept the score on Sandusky as low as 32 points."

* * *

At the same time Coach Luther Hensbue of the Wildcats declared: "If the boys play the game against Mansfield that they did at Marietta, Mansfield will know it has been in a scrap The boys played good football at Marietta, but a muddy field prevented them from shaking carriers loose when we were in scoring territory."

Newark sent only 200 tickets here for tomorrow night's game, and these, placed on sale at the Athletic Supply and Tawse's Pharmacy, are going like hot cakes

Coach Harry Mehock takes his Tyger cross country team to Newark today, and promised to bring back more tickets for Friday sale

There are no reserved seats at Newark, but fans who buy their tickets here will avoid a rush at the gate

Butler High Has Homecoming Game

* * *

Crowning of the queen will take place in a ceremony at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon, with the Butler and Fredericktown bands taking part The game will start at 3 o'clock

Wary Gophers Meet Zup's Unpredictable Illinois

CHICAGO—(AP)—Unpredictable. That's the word for Bob Zuppke any time. It's also a word fitted especially to his current Illinois football team.

Wary.

That's Coach Bernie Bierman and the Minnesota Gophers.

Illinois will play the Gophers Saturday at Minneapolis. The Illini are rated way down the list of Big Ten teams. Minnesota is at the top of the roll of title contenders. The Gophers are strictly the favorites Sunday. But many a favorite has felt uneasy at the prospect of meeting Zuppke's Illini

At Champaign the boys are aching for a win

"We're better, sure," says Zup. "We have more dangerous backs. But I don't know what to expect. I don't know anything about Minnesota and I don't know too much about Illinois. But one thing we know—they've been tested and we haven't."

Wisconsin heralds the possibility of a better showing against Northwestern Saturday in the words of Coach Harry Stuhldreher—"if fortune falls our way we may make amends for our sad start I think we'll be in better condition this week-end than last."

Notre Dame left today for Georgia Tech by train, but the players' minds were in the air. "Our pass defense," says Coach Frank Leahy, "has to smarten up a lot." Scouts told Coach Bo McMillin, whose Indiana eleven will play Texas Christian this week, that TCU's Kyle Gillespie was one of the best passers in the business. He hit 24 of 20 against Arkansas.

Michigan will entertain Pitt Saturday and is the second of four Western conference teams that the easterners have on their schdule this year. Last week Purdue took the Panthers, 6 to 0 A week from Saturday Pitt will meet Minnesota and Nov 1 Ohio State.

Tulane Coach Fears Rice

Claims His Team Is Just An Ordinary Ball Club.

ATLANTA —(AP)— Tulane's not great, but just a football team trying to get along, said Coach Red Dawson today as he and his boys headed Texas-Ward for Saturday's game with Rice Institute and their third intersectional battle in as many weeks.

"We haven't any high-fallutin' ideas like some people seem to have that we're a great team," declared Dawson "We're just a football team doing the best we can"

Last year Tulane's up-and-down team took Rice by a score of 15-6, but Dawson wouldn't predict the same success this year for the outfit which beat Boston college 21-7 in its opener, and followed it up with a 33-0 drubbing of Auburn.

"Our scouts report Rice has a great personnel," he explained. "But they haven't been tested and I can't tell much about them until they get up against a tough opponent The team is much more rugged than Auburn."

At Houston, Coach Jess Neely expressed dissatisfaction over the Owls' first-game showing against Sam Houston State Teachers. Despite a 24-0 victory he felt they looked ragged, complained: "Our blocking wasn't anything near what it should have been We're going to work our heads off this week We have to! Tulane looks like one of the best teams in the south and we have plenty to do before Saturday."

Cubs Release Root In House Cleaning

CHICAGO - (NS) The house-cleaning started this year by Manager Jimmy Wilson and General Manager Jim Gallagher of the Chicago Cubs was another step along today following the unconditional release of 12-year-old Charley Root, Blum pitching fixture for 16 years.

Along the North Side, the big question was "Who's next?" That some other Cubs will be placed on the block or released during the hot stove days was doubted by no one.

Wilson summed up the situation with the sucinct observation that "There is no one we can't spare in our efforts to rebuild."

Rams Get Assistant Mentor

Boosters' Club Appoints Kopcial To Aid Fendrick.

Madison high school's Boosters club last night appointed William Kopcial, Madison teacher, to assist Coach Al Fendrick with the Rams coaching chores for the rest of the season and began to apply the heat on the school board for a full time assistant for next year.

Before getting down to the serious business of having Fendrick explain slow motion pictures of Ram plays the Boosters heard Olan LaRue, Madison township school superintendent, tell the need for passing a three mill school levy in November and voted to boost the levy.

* * *

However, at the same time the resolution was passed Al Kipp, club proxy, noted that there was a possibility of "making a deal" with the school board so that some of the money could be used to augment the Ram coaching now that the school has grown into Class A competition.

* * *

Commenting on the films of his team, Fendrick diagramed the Mt. Vernon defense and the plays the Rams would use against them.

Mt. Vernon has been playing a waiting defense on its flanks which will stop Madison's favorite end sweeps.

Fendrick said the Mt. Vernon outfit used a six-two-two-one defense, but that the line backers played so close to the line it was virtually an eight man line with but three backs.

To combat this the Rams are going to throw passes where the backers should be.

* * *

The pass offense has been waiting two weeks so far to be tried by Madison. Last week after devoting most of the practice time to preparing it for Mt. Gilead the Rams had to concentrate on line plunges and kicking because of a wet field.

Other Ram novelties will be the first use of reverse and drive off the tackles in which Fendrick hopes his boys can not only block the Mt. Vernon boys out of the play, but move them back and away at the same time.

So far this season Mt. Vernon has beaten Columbus St Mary's 19-0, lost to Bexley 7-6, and tied Marion Harding 0-0.

The Harding game was played last Monday in the rain and mud and since it not only cut the Mt. Vernon practice time this week but also probably tired the team Fendrick hopes his team will have a slight advantage.

* * *

Salem High School Trys New Wrinkle

SALEM, O.—(NS)—Salem high school, recognized as the first high school in the nation to play night football, will inaugurate a new wrinkle Friday night in its game with Struthers, it was revealed here today.

* * *

The Salem band will march in uniforms of a new fluorescent material and the varied colors will be brought out by mercury arc lamps which will be turned on when the regular stadium lights are put out.

* * *

According to E. E Kerr, superintendent of Salem public schools, none of the college bands have tried the stunt yet.

White Hot, But Lions Beaten

Becomes Poor Little Rich Boy as His Teams Fail.

DETROIT—(AP)—Byron (Whizzer) White has become professional football's poor little rich boy, but the former University of Colorado all-America halfback isn't shopping for sympathy

* * *

This is the Whizzer's third season in the postgraduate game. He twice has been the National league's top ground gainer and his salary checks quite likely match anything in the business, yet he never has played on a winning team.

Naturally, I'd like to be with a big winner like the Chicago Bears and the Green Bay Packers," said the 24-year-old triple threater today as his Detroit Lions brushed up for their home opener Sunday with the Cleveland Rams. "But I'm not complaining because this club still is going to give them all trouble."

Detroit's first three starts under Coach Bill Edwards, just up from the collegiate ranks at Western Reserve, produced nothing better than a tie with the Chicago Cardinals against losses to Green Bay and Brooklyn. The Whizzer has been his sensational self in these games, but it wasn't enough.

In 1938 he joined the Pittsburgh Pirates but the club won only two games that year and finished last.

* * *

Last year, after a season of retirement, White was lured from his law books at Yale to play for Detroit. He again topped the league's ground-gainers but his club only hit the 500 mark.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Parker Hall, star passer, and Gaylon Smith, rugged fullback, will be out of the Cleveland Rams' lineup Sunday against the Detroit Lions at Detroit it was declared today by Dutch Clark, Ram coach.

Buckeyes Start Work On Purdue

Holiday Welcome Over, Gridders Practicing.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State's Buckeyes returned to the practice field today after promising a crowd of at least 20,000 admirers that they would "work hard" to prevent a reversal of the form that led them to an unprecedented 33-0 victory over the University of Southern California.

The Bucks came home last night and found their train surrounded by shouting humanity.

Coach Paul E. Brown, new Buckeye mentor just up from Massillon high school, said:

* * *

Capt. Jack Stephenson of Marion, all but speechless at the ovation, promised simply:

"We're going to work and brother, we're going to work hard."

The team members arrived wearing somberos and broad smiles. The noisy reception took only 10 minutes after which the Bucks were escorted to taxicabs and whisked back to the campus.

Coach Brown's piece was brief and earnest.

"Tomorrow morning we go back to the mud and dirt under the stadium," he said. "Our first concern now is to think of the rest of the season. We've got to think of Purdue next. That's more important than all the preliminaries."

* * *

The Bucks have an open date this week and then play Purdue and Northwestern on successive Saturdays in the huge Buckeye stadium.

DOM DI MAGGIO SUED FOR BAT SLIP DAMAGES

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Dominic DiMaggio, Boston Red Sox baseball player, has been sued for $11,600 damages by Joseph W. Rodgers, Long Beach oil supply company executive, for injuries he charges he received at an exhibition baseball game at Wrigley field here last October.

Rodgers alleged he suffered concussion and other injuries when DiMaggio's bat slipped from his hands and flew into the grandstand.

PITT TEAMS ENTRAIN

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — Pittsburgh's three collegiate football elevens quit the Steel City today to take part in frays east and west of here. Pitt's Panthers entrained for Ann Arbor to meet Michigan's Wolverines; Carnegie Tech's Tartans entrained for Allentown to meet Muhlenberg, and the Dukes of Duquesne left the city for New York, where they will meet a strong Manhattan eleven.

Honor Gordon as Series Hero

Hero of the 1941 world series, Joe Gordon, second baseman of the New York Yanks, is pictured with his wife and daughter, Judy, at New York's city hall where he was honored officially for his play in the blue ribbon classic. Gordon was presented with a $150 hat, but it was too big. Gordon now is en route to his Eugene, Ore., home.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Here is a guy who ought to sympathize with Mickey Owen and the Dodgers. . . . Forrest Main, a pitcher for Idaho Falls in the Pioneer league, had a no-hitter against Boise with two out in the ninth when Jack Radtke bounced an easy one and Shelly McConnell, the second sacker, fell down trying to make the throw. . . . The scorer finally had to call it a hit. . . . West coast reporters here for the series spent a lot of time quizzing the southerners about Duke after the Blue Devils knocked off Tennessee. They'd like to see Wallace Wade's boys in the Rose Bowl again if all goes well. . . . Wonder if those cops who pinched Gerry Priddy and Johnny Sturm in Jersey were trying to square up for the bluecoats who got in Mickey Owen's way on that play?

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Carter (Scoop) Latimer, Greenville (S. C.) News: "Mickey's muff of that third-out strike saved the American people at least a million bucks that would have been spent on tickets, drinks, etc., for the sixth game at the stadium."

* * *

Joe Gould is offering Red Cochrane $15,000 to fight young Kid McCoy for the welter title either here or in Detroit. . . . Frankie Frisch is all worked up about Vincent Smith, the Pirates' rookie catcher. . . . Johnny Colan, the middleweight swatter, will jump in with the heavyweights against Buddy Knox at Chicago. . . . Dick Bartell tells Detroit friends he's had three offers to manage clubs.

A Y'S MOVE.

The football rule-makers have forbidden Ossie Solem's "Y" formation in which the center faces the backfield. Maybe they thought Ossie had the guy sitting on the ball to hatch out some trick plays. . . . Army scouts report that Earl Blaik has some nice big plebes coming up now that the physical restrictions have been loosened. . . . Tennessee must have some right good freshmen, too. Before the Duke game Billie Gold, Vol back, claimed he'd rather play Duke than the frosh. . . . When Major Swede Larson, the Navy coach, found his players too much on edge just before they opened the season against William and Mary, he bought the loudest plaid vest he could find and wore it into the dressing room. Just before the game, Swede said: "Now boys, let's take our coats off and get down to business," and unveiled the sartorial masterpiece. The boys laughed so hard they forgot about being nervous.

Little Poison In Job Hunt

Aging Pitchers' Terror Released By Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—"Little Poison" joins the list of baseball veterans looking for a job.

Lloyd Waner, for 14 years a terror to National league pitchers and the brother of "Big Poison" Paul Waner, was given his unconditional release last night by the Cincinnati Reds to make room on the roster for a drafted $6,000 minor league southpaw. Being a ten-year man, Lloyd is free to sign with any club.

Lloyd was brought here last spring in a deal that sent pitcher Johnny Hutchings to the Boston Braves and his main job at the age of 35 was to give the weak-hitting Cincinnati outfield some strength. Although he played only intermittently, he delivered a number of needed hits and fielded up to his usual style. He wound up with a .256 batting average.

Lloyd came to the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1927, a year later than his brother, and hit .355 in 150 games that year. He set the modern National league mark of 198 singles in 1927, led the league in singles in four years, and twice led the league in striking out the fewest times.

* * *

A native of Harrah, Okla., he broke into baseball with San Francisco of the Pacific Coast league in 1925.

The man who crowded him off the Red roster is Jim Pendergast, 25, who won 15 and lost 16 for Little Rock in the Southern association in 1941.

COACH DEFERRED

Yale's line coach, Bob Voigts, was granted a six-month's deferment from the U. S. army draft on the condition that he will enlist in the navy at the conclusion of the football season.

BOTH JUNIOR HIGH TEAMS SCHEDULED

Mansfield junior high gridders are busy this afternoon, with Johnny Appleseed meeting Sandusky junior high at the Appleseed gridiron at 3 o'clock, and John Simpson going to Galion for a game with the Galion high reserves.

Find Jenkins Rib Broken

Fight With Angott To Be Postponed.

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Postponement of the scheduled 15-round lightweight title bout between Champion Lew Jenkins and Sammy Angott seemed virtually certain today following announcement that the Texan is suffering from a fractured rib and inflammation of his righ. shoulder.

X-rays of Jenkins, who cringed before Welterweight Champion Red Cochrane for 10 rounds in a non-title affair Monday night, revealed the injuries, which apparently were suffered in a recent motorcycle accident.

Fred Browning, manager of Jenkins, who has posted a $1,500 bond guaranteeing his fighter's weight and presence for the bout with Angott on Oct. 31 at Madison Square Garden, said he planned to take Lew to Hot Springs, Ark., to build him up.

* * *

But before the Angott bout can be cancelled, the New York boxing commission, which ordered the forfeit posted before Jenkins could obtain his share of the purse for the fight with Cochrane, must agree that the Texan cannot train up to it.

Promoter Mike Jacobs had indicated that former Welter Champion Fritzie Zivic and Ray Robinson may be signed as replacements.

Army Coaches To Try Radio

Assistant on Stadium Rim Will Talk To Mentor.

FORT LEWIS, Wash. — (AP) — "Calling Coach Tuttle! Calling Coach Tuttle! Pull Hank Smith out of left guard! He's been letting too many men through! That is all."

The army's new technique in radio communication has reached the football field and if the idea spreads you can be on the lookout for plenty of complications.

* * *

The experiment is to be made Sunday, for the first time on any gridiron, when coaches of the army's 41st division football team try out two "walkie-talkie" radio sets during a game between the soldiers and the Boeing aircraft team of Seattle.

* * *

The plan is this: Lieut. Loren W. Tuttle, head coach, will pace up and down the side lines with a walkie-talkie strapped to his back. Assistant Coach John Hackenbruck will perch on the roof of the press box with another portable set.

From his vantage point, Hackenbruck, former Oregon State and Detroit Lions star, will try to spot plays and openings not discernible to Tuttle down on the field.

Coach Tuttle and Hackenbruck will have no difficulty procuring the necessary equipment, seeing as how the 41st division uses 100 or more of the portable sets on field maneuvers. The two way voice sets weigh about 20 pounds and hang on the back like a knapsack.

* * *

Football authorities were approached on the legality of the idea. They haven't as yet been able to find any rules covering such activities by coaches and assistant coaches—so long as they don't talk by radio to the players on the field.

* * *

The experiment, according to army football men in the division, would be the first time in the history of the sport that radio had been used in actual direction of a game.

PITT WORKS FOR MICHIGAN

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — It was work, and lots of it, which fell to the University of Pittsburgh's Panthers today as they prepared to meet Michigan's Wolverines at Ann Arbor Saturday. Pitt's gridders were given a heavy dose of fundamental line work to insure against a repetition of last Saturday's defeat by the Boilermakers of Purdue, 6 to 0.

Authority Says Steel Frame Building Best Place To Be During Storm.

(By United Press)

AUSTIN, Tex.—Dr. C. P. Boner, professor of physics at the University of Texas, has some sad news for persons who seek protection in a feather bed or tub of water when electrical storms crackle outside.

The best place to be when lightning plays around the yard is inside a steel frame building or in the old-fashioned storm cellar, said Dr. Boner. It is better to get under the feather bed than in it, he added, because the metal springs will offer more protection than the feathers.

"There is no foundation for the old adage that safety will come with getting one's feet off the floor and putting them in a tub of water," said the physics expert

Dr Boner warned against standing near a window during an electrical storm or standing before an open fireplace. The lightning has a tendency to come in windows when people stand nearby and to strike chimneys that protrude above the roof from fireplaces

The safest place to be in an ordinary home is in the middle of a room away from windows and lamps. Danger that lightning will strike your house (which caused old-time salesmen to sell thousands of lightning rods) has been diminished somewhat, Dr. Boner said, by telephone and radio "ground" wires.

Dr. Boner discredited trees as a safe refuge from thunder storms Lightning sometimes strikes the tree, he said, vaporizes the sap and causes the limb or trunk to "explode." The discharge then may travel to a person under the tree, he added

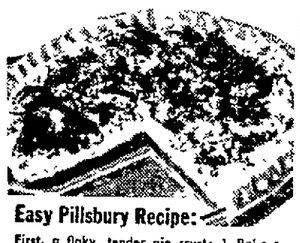
How to make Pillsbury's
Four-Layer Cream Pie
It's different, new, and mighty good!



Easy Pillsbury Recipe:

First, a flaky, tender pie crust: 1 Bake a 9-in pie shell, using Enriched Pillsbury's Best Flour Chill ingredients before mixing Work quickly, with a "light" hand Add ice water to flour mixture a little at a time (Enriched Pillsbury's Best has the same perfect flavor and fine baking quality as always, but two B vitamins and iron have now been added—elements everyone needs for sound nerves and good appetite) 2 The smooth, creamy filling Combine ½ c Pillsbury's Best, 1 c sugar, and ¼ tsp salt in top of double boiler Add 3 c milk, slowly, stir constantly As the mixture thickens, note the rich creamy color the smooth ungrained texture so necessary to perfect filling Pillsbury's Best is tested every hour for creamy white color! 3 Cook mixture over boiling water until thick and smooth (10 min) 4 Add a little of the hot filling to 2 eggs, well beaten Mix well Return to hot mixture Stir and cook about 1 min longer 5 Remove from fire—add 1 tsp vanilla Turn ½ mixture into your tender flaky pie shell (it's a fine extender and flavor if you use Pillsbury's Best for we test by actual baking 4 to 6 times daily to make sure that Pillsbury's Best will always do its very best for you! Pillsbury's Best is truly bake-proved, to protect your baking) 6 Add 1½ sqs (1½ oz) unsweetened chocolate, melted, and 3 Tbl sugar to other half 7 Pour over the cooled vanilla filling cool Toss thick sweetened whipped cream over all and sprinkle grated chocolate over top Four Layer Cream Pie looks like a chef's dream And as you cut it note how tender, how delicate and flaky pie crust can be when you use Pillsbury's Best! Four Layer Cream Pie tastes as luscious as it looks, so we'd advise making an extra one Then you can answer those welcome compliments with "Have another piece of pie!"

Urge Selection Of St. Louis as U. S. Sub-Capital

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—St. Louis is being urged as a logical sub-capital for the United States, should the government be forced to transfer some of its agencies from Washington to make room for rapidly-expanding defense establishments.

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce already has submitted to the Director of the Budget and agencies most likely to be affected complete data about office space, housing, labor, schools and the city's relation to surrounding territory.

An exponent of St. Louis as a sub-capital for the nation is Circuit Attorney Thomas C. Hennings of St. Louis, a former representative in congress, who is urging other organizations to join the Chamber of Commerce in pressing the city's claims.

Important federal offices are already centered in St Louis Hennings pointed out The War Department recently announced purchase of the Mart Building for its main medical supply depot. Many farm leaders have advocated a shift of the Agriculture Department office to the Middle West. St. Louis, is regarded favorably for a transfer of this office.

Pep up salads and soups with crispy FULL FLAVOR Cheese Straws

HAVE a big plateful—they'll disappear like magic! Everybody loves these tender, crunchy pastry strips with their wonderful cheese flavor. Easy to make but be sure to use Spry! Don't risk ordinary shortenings that may dull flavor.

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour — 1 cup grated American cheese (¼ pound)
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne
⅓ cup Spry — 2 tablespoons water (about)

Sift flour and salt and cayenne. Cut in Spry until mixture is like meal. Cut in cheese.

Sprinkle water over mixture With a fork, work lightly into a dough. Add just enough water to moisten. Roll dough ⅛ inch thick. Cut into ¾ inch strips, 5 inches long. DOMESTIC CORK WILL BE GROWN

California Lays Foundation For World's Largest Producing Areas.

(By United Press)

DAVIS, Cal.—California is laying the foundation this year not only for making itself self-sufficient in corks by 1981 but also for the creation of one of the world's largest producing areas of what still ranks as one of the "strategic raw materials."

Cork gets on the "strategic raw material" list as a result of its imperative use in life preservers floats, airplanes, air-conditioning equipment, hat linings, shoe soles, flooring and particularly in bottling.

This year 10,000 cork-oak seedlings will be distributed by the University of California college of Agriculture free to all growers who will agree to plant and maintain at least 50 trees. They will produce their first crop of cork bark in about 15 years.

This first crop, college authorities explain will not be particularly valuable. It will be the so-called "virgin cork" which is rough, unequal and woody in texture. However, it will still have a certain marketable value for use in tanning and as a decorative substance for ferneries.

The succeeding crops, however, taken every 8 to 10 years—will be increasingly valuable because of the ever-increasing quality of the cork bark.

By the time the trees have reached their 100th to 150th birthday they will have endowed California with a new industry and a permanent source of raw material that will be one of its leading assets and sources of wealth, according to scientists.

Long-sighted planning lies behind the project, according to the College of Agriculture.

The ancestors of this year's crop of seedlings were planted in the 1880s and 1890s, and it is only now that they are being stripped for the first time.

Tests made to date show that the bark is just as good as that obtained from trees of equal age in Spain and Portugal, two of the world's greatest sources of cork. Later this year, additional tests are to be made on cork- oaks in the San Joaquin valley and Southern California.

The best commercial production, according to Woodbridge Metcalf, forestry specialist at the College of Agriculture, begins when the trees are about 40 years old. They are in their prime between 100 to 150 years of age, he said.

TORTURED BY BACKACHE TILL MANSFIELD LADY FOUND VENDOL

Muscular pains due to constipation made her sore and stiff, every move was an effort. Tells of amazing action, and advises every sufferer to try Vendol, too.

MRS. JAMES BENNETT, JR.
Mansfield Resident

Mrs. James Bennett, Jr., of 179½ N. Main street, says, "There are many days when I am constipated that I'm burdened with a no-good feeling and awful symptoms like the muscles of my legs aching from my knees down to my ankles, my back feels like it will break, and the muscular aches get so bad in my arms I can hardly raise them to brush my hair, and many a night these pains keep me awake for hours and I have to rub my legs so I can get back to sleep, all due to being constipated.

"I began taking Vendol, and it actually astonished me. It gives the grandest, most comforting, temporary relief from constipation of anything I have tried, and when I get this relief I never suffer any of the symptoms of muscular aches, pains, soreness, or distress, due to constipation, and I feel like a different person.

"I am no longer alarmed about myself, because I know that all I have to do is take Vendol and all will be well."

When you suffer from the same cause, take Vendol, a medicine with 17 years' reputation for helping men and women who praise it by the thousands, and say it is the best compound they ever tried. Vendol is a satisfying laxative for the bowels carminative for the stomach, and a mild diuretic for the kidneys. Give Vendol a trial today. All druggists sell it. Get the larger size bottles which save you money.

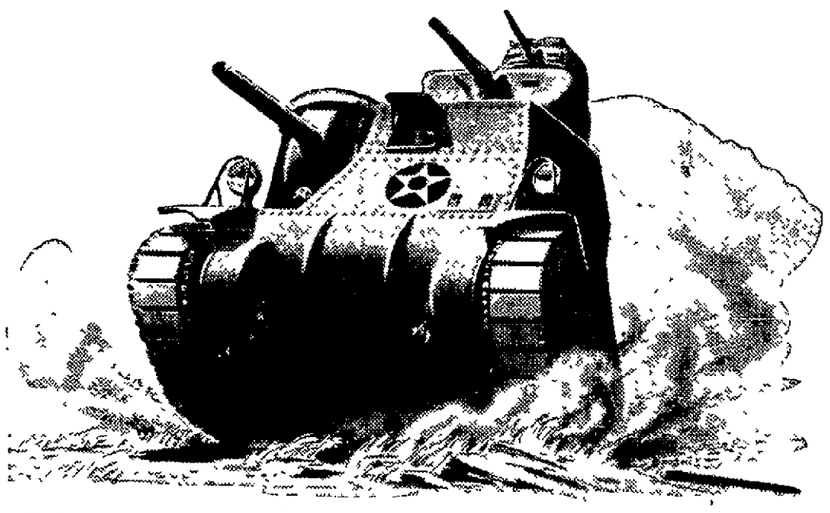
AND YOU



MANY OF THE ARMY'S HIGH SPEED TANKS, trucks, combat cars, liquid-cooled airplanes and other vital defense equipment use "Prestone" anti-freeze. This one shot, all winter protection is also used by the Navy to keep ships, submarines, and speedy patrol torpedo boats in fighting trim. By protecting equipment that protects you, "Prestone" anti-freeze plays a vital role in the nation's defense.

IF YOU CAN'T GET "PRESTONE" ANTI-FREEZE

Remember this

In addition to the demands made on "Prestone" anti-freeze, raw materials necessary for its manufacture are being used in making defense equipment. Despite these heavy defense requirements, quantities of "Prestone" anti-freeze were made available to American motorists, but the supply probably will not be sufficient to meet all civilian needs.

TRUE LOVE

KNOTT END, Eng.—(U.P.)—Edward Smithson was in love with Marian Holmes. They were going to get married. But they quarreled. Just a lover's tiff, but they took a long time making it up—50 years, in fact.

Fifty years after the quarrel, Edward and Marian have married at the Methodist church at Knott End. He is now 76, she 73.

DRIVER GETS BAD START

SHERIDAN, Wyo.—(U.P.)— When 3-year-old Clark Anton climbed into his father's car, parked in the business section, he stepped on the starter and the car—which was in gear—started to move. It crossed the street, and ran into two other machines, damaging both.

STOCK MARKET SHOWS SLIGHT DECLINE TODAY

Losses Held To Small Limits as Selling Activities Remain Moderate.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks were inclined to seek lower levels in today's market but losses generally were held to small limits and selling activities were moderate.

In the backward department were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Goodrich and Eastman. Rails and aircrafts idled in a narrow groove. Receiving support at times were duPont and Woolworth.

Terms of the treasury's $1,500,000,000 financing operation attracted wide interest in financial circles. Announcement that the $1,200,000,000 of new treasury bonds to be sold for cash subscription would carry a 2½ per cent interest rate was in line with expectations.

Pain and Soreness In My Back Relieved By Bee Bee's

Piqua resident claims Bee Bee's brought long wanted relief. Now sleeps sound, and has no sign of other former troubling ailments. Would be greatly pleased if other sufferers would try Bee Bee's.

"For the past 3 years I have been troubled with getting up at nights to relieve my kidneys, which disturbed my sleep greatly," declares Mrs. Erma I. Baker, of 128½ North Main street Piqua, Ohio

"Before I took Bee Bee's I had to get up three or four times at night and in the morning I felt all fagged out, as if I hadn't any rest

"My nerves were unsettled and I felt weak and miserable. I took one thing after another for my kidneys but I didn't seem to get any real help.

"I suffered with pains and stiffness in my back and the back of my neck. My joints were stiff and sore and I was very nervous. My poor sleep was the fault of my headaches and loss of vitality."

"I feel better in every way as a result of the Bee Bee's treatment. I would be greatly pleased if other sufferers would try Bee Bee's."
